President To Seek Peace In Steel Industry

Takes Hand In Lengthy Battle His Steel Board Is Waging

CALLS LEADERS TO CONFERENCE

Permanent Plan For Peace In Steel Industry Controversy Aim

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—President Roosevelt today personally lent a hand in the lengthy battle which his Steel Labor Board is waging to bring permanent peace in the industry.

To this end, Mr. Roosevelt called for a conference at the White House two members of the Labor Board, with Walter P. Stacy and Admiral Henry Wiley, along with President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and representatives of the industry and of labor.

Call Steel Heads

Others called to the White House included Charlton Ogburn, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers; Myron Taylor, president of U. S. Steel; Eugene Grace, of Bethlehem Steel, and Michael Tighe, Pittsburgh steel union representative.

Stacy advised the president several days ago that the steel board has agreed to the language of a plan designed to bring permanent peace in the industry between employers and workers, but that it is not entirely acceptable to employers and workers.

The president called today's meeting in an effort to iron out the differences with representatives of all parties concerned.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Lloyd H. Lamm, 409 North Mercer street, has returned from the Franklin district, where he was hunting last week. He succeeded in bringing down an eight point deer weighing about 200 pounds. He got the animal on the last day of the season.

Pa Newc is informed that the new federal building on the public square is occupying a site that was once used by the town's post office in years gone by. Some years prior to 1891 one of the rooms in the old building at the corner of Washington and Jefferson streets that was torn down to make way for the new federal building, was used as the post office, Pa Newc is informed.

While spectators at the Westminster Basketball opening game of the season last night got a glimpse of another fast Titan team in action, there was another feature that was of note. The Westminster College band, which played a number of selections during the game is a much improved organization over any previous band at the college. And the snappy blue and white uniforms add much to the appearance of the outfit.

Believes City Council And Library Board Should Get Together

Safety Director D. O. Davies believes the members of city council and the trustees of the public library should meet and in session reach a decision as to which should secure the North Mercer street building abandoned for post office purposes.

Commenting on the report that the trustees would like to acquire the building and also the desire of the city to have the place for municipal purposes he declared: "I do not believe either body should 'buck' each other."

Davies said he did not care to mention the amount which the city had offered some time ago for the building but added that the city building is wholly inadequate for present day municipal purposes. He said that with this in view council sometime ago had had a survey of the post office building made.

"There are all kind of records here. They could be destroyed by fire. And then again there are no accommodations for the public," he declared, explaining that time and again he has aided elderly people to the third floor and at other times has had chairs placed on each floor so they could rest after climbing one set of stairs.

Three Killed As Truck Crashes

Coal Truck Carrying Fuel From Shamokin To Philadelphia Crashes Into Pole

DRIVER ASLEEP AT WHEEL, BELIEF

(International News Service)

MALVERN, Pa., Dec. 18.—Three men were killed today when their coal truck, carrying fuel from Shamokin to Philadelphia, left the road, crashed into a concrete and iron telegraph pole and burst into flames on the Lincoln highway at Doylesford, one mile east of here.

The dead were John J. Dormer, 25, and his brother, Thomas, 35, both of Shamokin, and Evan B. Smith, Philadelphia.

The crash occurred shortly before dawn. Deputy Coroner Harry G. Cox, Malvern, said it was evident that the driver, John Dormer, had fallen asleep at the wheel.

MOTHER KILLS TWO CHILDREN, THEN SUICIDES

(International News Service)

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 18.—A 44 cent debt to a drugstore figured today in a police investigation of an asserted double murder and suicide which wiped out the family of William Hector Morris, an unemployed Englishman.

After spending the day in search of a job, Morris returned home late last night expecting to be greeted by his wife and children. Instead, he found a note in his wife's handwriting which read: "I owe the drugstore 44 cents."

Then he saw the body of his wife, a glass of poison beside it.

Nearby was his five year old daughter, strangled to death with a rope. In the bath tub was the drowned body of his two year old son. Morris told police his wife had been despondent.

ILLINOIS WOMAN STOPS YAWNING

Doctors Believe Fight Against Strange Malady Has Been Successful

(International News Service)

STERLIN, Ill., Dec. 18—Physicians watched at the bedside of Mrs. Grace McKee today, hopeful that the yawning spasms that beset the 27-year-old farm hand's wife for 192 hours had finally subsided.

Belief that the malady had been brought under control was expressed by Dr. H. L. Pettit, attending physician, after Mrs. McKee spent a fairly restful night at Sterling public hospital. The periodic yawning that had noticeably weakened the woman since the spasms began one week ago last Sunday suddenly ceased at 4 p. m. yesterday.

Her yawning set a record, in the opinion of Dr. Pettit, who estimates that she had yawned 10,000 times before the attacks subsided.

Purdy Speaks To Engineers

American Ceramics Society Secretary Makes Address Monday Night

LEIS IS ELECTED LOCAL PRESIDENT

For speakers addressing the Engineers Society at The Castleton have been more interesting or entertaining than the speaker of Monday night, Dr. Ross C. Purdy, General Secretary of the American Ceramics Society of Columbus, O. He not only knew his subject, but he knew how to present it in a way that captured the attention of his auditors and the half hour he spoke seemed all too short. He spoke on, "The Scope of Ceramic Engineering."

He is a veteran ceramist. For many years he was engaged in the manufacture of grinding wheels, a subject that in itself merits a full discussional period. In addition he was a member of the faculty of Ohio State University for a number of years but was prevailed upon to accept the general secretaryship of the society and the management of the industry's publications.

Five Divisions

He divided his subject into five general heads, Definition, History, Natural Materials, Process and Equipment and the Future. As a one line definition of ceramics he said "Ceramics" is the art or science of producing something useful from silicate minerals." From this he went into a description of the igneous clays, how they were produced when the disintegration of igneous rocks took place, giving us the great variety of clays used in the manufacture of china ware, glass, terra cotta, bricks, tile, and other long list of useful articles.

For a few minutes he dwelt upon the manufacture of china and told of the early history of the manufacture in China, then in Bavaria, then France and England. American chinaware he said was distinctly an American development in that the ware here is fired at a high

Campaign In Behalf Of Margaret Henry Home Is Bearing Fruit, Workers Show

INTEREST SHOWN BY CITIZENS HERE

"New Castle citizens have a deep interest in the Margaret L. Henry Children's Home," R. W. "Cap" Rowland stated this morning, "as evidence by the splendid results reported by workers on the first day of the membership campaign, which opened Monday."

It is hoped to enroll over a thousand memberships before the campaign ends on December 24, and in spite of the fact that this is the busy Christmas season, the workers have pledged themselves to accomplish this task.

All this week, they will be on the job, asking the citizens of New Castle to take out their membership, thus showing their interest in one of the finest institutions that the city boasts, and doing so in a material way.

If the team workers continue their efforts as splendidly as they have to date, there will be no question of the success of the campaign, Mr. Rowland stated. He feels greatly encouraged by the way the various citizens have rallied to this worthy cause.

New Outbreak In Cuba Feared After Terrorism

Forty Huge Bombs Burst In Havana—Widespread Damage

FIVE PERSONS ARE REPORTED INJURED

Seventy-Nine Arrests Made —Report Move To Oust President

By RICHARD ARMSTRONG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HAVANA, Dec. 18.—All soldiers and sailors today were under orders to stand by in their quarters for an emergency as opponents of the government, hitherto fighting among themselves, suddenly moved toward union to oust Provisional President Carlos Mendieta.

Firm precautionary action was taken promptly following a night of terror in which more than forty huge bombs burst in Havana, wounding three women and two men, and causing widespread damage. One youth died from the effects of a beating administered by police, who suspected him of placing a bomb.

Seventy-Nine Arrests

At least 79 enemies of the government, of varying political affiliations, have been arrested in a nation-wide roundup in the last 24 hours.

Rumors that a rebellion is imminent raced through Havana, in the face of futile attempts by Col. Fulgencio Batista to quiet the populace. Col. Batista the real power behind President Mendieta, issued a statement emphatically denying that the country faces a revolution, stating that the situation has become calm again, and that terrorism is being handled through ordinary police channels.

Probe Death Of Wealthy Widow

Bath, N. Y., Officials Have Second Mystery Death In Two Weeks

(International News Service)

BATH, N. Y., Dec. 18.—Steuben county authorities today were confronted with the second mystery death in two weeks, following the finding of the battered body of Mrs. George Parker, 72, wealthy widow, in her home here.

Coroner Zeno Selleck pronounced the case that of murder. After an autopsy showed death was caused by several blows on the head believed to have been inflicted with a file or similar instrument.

Mrs. Parker, the widow of a former mayor of Bath, lived alone.

Two weeks ago, at Canisteo, 25 miles from here, the body of another aged and well-to-do widow, Mrs. Winnie Burlingame, was found with her head battered.

At the time, authorities believed she might have taken her own life.

Police have renewed their investigation into the first mystery seeking a link between the two tragedies.

Attorneys Held For Conspiracy

Two Attorneys Held In Jail In Connection With Urschel Kidnaping Money

(International News Service)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 18—With two attorneys in jail charged with conspiracy federal authorities pressed toward conclusion today the final chapter in their investigation of the ransom kidnaping in 1933 of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil multi-millionaire.

The two lawyers, who represented defendants in the kidnaping trial, are Ben Laska, veteran Denver attorney, and James C. Mathers, a young Oklahoma lawyer.

Federal agents arrested the pair on specific charges of handling a portion of the $200,000 ransom paid for Urschel's release.

As a result of the recent recovery of $46,000 of the ransom money in Oregon, the federal grand jury indicted Bates' wife, Clara Feldman and her son, Edward Feldman and her brother-in-law, Alvin Scott.

Seek To Release Billions To Aid Recovery Work

Drastically Liberalized Plan For Extension Of Credit Is Urged

TREASURY EXPERTS MAKE REPORTS

Recommendations Are Made After Study Of Credit Situation

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Designed to release billions in inactive funds for industrial expansion special treasury experts today proposed a drastically liberalized plan for extension of private and public credit.

Release of the large sums now piled in the banks under greatly liberalized policies was held essential to economic recovery by Dr. Jacob Viner, of Chicago, and Chas. O Hardy, of Washington, special assistants to secretary Morganthau.

Viner and Hardy conducted a survey of the availability of bank credit in the Chicago federal reserve district, embracing Iowa and parts of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan. They reported to Secretary Morgenthau today in a voluminous document which may form the basis for banking legislation.

"There is a widespread belief that at present the banks are overcautious in lending and are particularly reluctant to make the type of loans that is most important in the earlier stages of the expansion of business, that is, loans to finance expansion of manufacturing production," the report said.

Mayor And Council In Budget Argument; Mayne Leaves Session

Council convened informally Monday afternoon in city hall for the purpose of attempting to fix appropriations for the operation of the city government during 1935, but the session was practically terminated when Mayor Chas. B. Mayne arose from his seat and declared: "When the rest of you get to the point, I'll come back." However, before he had departed Councilmen Davies, Alexander and the mayor participated in a rapid-fire argument over what the mayor charged was no attempt to cut appropriations which was denied by Davies, Alexander and Butler.

Mayor Leaves

In fact the argument between the councilmen was the most explosive since the administration took office and considerable heat was obvious during the informal meeting. The quarrel arose over appropriations for the department of streets and public improvements, headed by Councilman B. F. Butler. Davies defended Butler and declared that the figures being set down were only tentative and Councilman Alexander became vexed, he said, because the mayor "walked out" of the budget meeting at the time Alexander's department needs were to be considered.

Throughout the verbal exchange Councilman Hoyland remained quiet and after the mayor left the room and the appropriation makers, City

Survivors Of Two Desperado Gangs United

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Surviving members of the notorious Dillinger and Touhy desperado gangs, adopting the policy of big business combination, have merged forces to wage their reign of terror under one common leadership, police and federal authorities learned today.

Questioning of Joseph Burns, captured ex-convict and one of the last surviving members of John Dillinger's original gang, convinced authorities that the two gangs had joined forces.

Heading the infamous crime alliance, according to information dropped by Burns, is Tommy Touhy, slight quick-triggered brother of Roger Touhy, who is now serving a 99-year sentence for the kidnaping of John "Jake the Barber" Factor, wealthy stock promoter. In "interlocking directorate" shapes the vital policies of the gang, it was said.

DR. POLLOCK IS CONGRATULATED BY ROTARY CLUB

Letter To Him Will Cary Its Praise For His Choice As Saar Official

Recognizing the international honor it accords him, the Rotary club of New Castle has moved to dispatch a congratulatory letter to Dr. James Kerr Pollock, University of Michigan professor and native of this city, named last week by the League of Nations to serve as president of one of the districts in the Saar valley during the significant January plebiscite.

In the Saar the residents will go to the polls to vote whether that rich sector will revert to German or French control or remain under the jurisdiction of a commission of the League of Nations.

The move to send the letter, expressing the club's sincere congratulations over his selection, was made yesterday.

Secretary Carl E. Paisley will send the letter at once, and it is likely other local organizations will join with them in the resolution of praise.

Dr. Pollock is the son of Mrs. J. K. Pollock, East street.

POST OFFICE ON SAME SITE THAT IT ONCE STOOD

New Castle's post office stood in the same location as the new Federal building at one period between 1812 and 1891, before it made its many moves about the downtown district.

It stood, according to authoritative information, on the corner site where the Cripps Hardware company was located before the site was purchased for the Federal building.

The building which the post office occupied then was a humble dwelling as compared to the magnificent structure which houses it today.

WILL ROGERS Says:

(Special To The News)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 18.—The other night over the radio for the Salvation Army, I was blathering away about a short piece I had read in the paper that very night, telling of a plan to give everybody work. Well, friends been kidding me since then. "Will, where is your plan you was telling about?"

Well, today it broke out; it was gotten up by the National Resources Board. It plans to spend $105,000,000,000. (Now all those naughts belong on there—that 105 is billions) and it's called a "plan to end all planning." That will knock these old rich boys in the creek that have been hollering about a debt of a mere 28 billions. This is a plan to do away with all small figures.

Chinese Bandits Who Killed Mr. And Mrs. John C. Stam, Still On Warpath

(International News Service)

PEIPING, Dec. 18.—Undaunted by public indignation aroused by their ruthless murder of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stam, American missionaries of Paterson, N. J., China's communist bandit hordes moved northward today, pillaging villages along their route.

They assaulted Kinghsien, 40 miles south of Wuhu, where the infant daughter of the Stams is being cared for by women missionaries pending arrival of her grandparents from Tsinan.

Grave fears were felt for the safety of 25 American men and women missionaries at Wuhu. It was felt the bloody success of the reds in Anwhei, where the slaying of the Stams occurred, would impel the raiders to new excesses.

ROXIE LONG NOW ASKS FOR LAWYER

Long, legally known as Rocco Dipippo, acting as his own lawyer, had amused the court in defending himself on charges of larceny, but had lost his cause.

BELIEVE BETTY GOW IS ENROUTE TO U. S.

Whereabouts Are Mystery

Variously Reported As Aboard Two Vessels Leaving England

WILL TESTIFY IN HAUPTMANN CASE

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Exact whereabouts of Betty Gow, Lindbergh baby nurse, believed enroute to the United States, were a mystery today.

She was variously reported aboard the Aquitania and the Ile de France, but a thorough check of boat trains at London, Southampton and Plymouth, failed to confirm her departure.

Aboard the Ile de France boat-train was a girl closely resembling Miss Gow who first responded when addressed by that name but later denied her identity. She left the train at Exeter with a male companion and took a local bus to the other side of town.

Efforts to confirm her departure from Glasgow were fruitless. The United States consulate denied her passport had been visaed. Her name appeared on no booking or passenger list of any steamship line.

There was a possibility her passport had been visaed secretly, enabling her to make an unannounced departure aboard the Aquitania, probably under an assumed name. It was revealed by International News Service weeks ago that Miss Gow would return to the United States to testify in the Hauptmann trial.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL IN BUDGET ARGUMENT; MAYOR MAYNE LEAVES

Controller Wimer, who had been requested to give aid to the lawmakers, poured oil on the troubled waters, by remarking: "You gentlemen take this thing too seriously." Councilmen, minus the mayor, resumed the task of compiling a tentative budget but it was quite evident that the abrupt departure of the mayor had left them unsettled—and they did not mince words.

Tentative Figures Set

Council had set tentative figures for the departments of public affairs, accounts and finance and safety, after which they bent to the task of settling upon expenditures for the department of streets and public improvements. For salaries of director, street commissioner and the clerk were placed at $5,200, the same as 1934. The mayor obviously did not like this and he remarked that the figures were out of proportion to those paid for other responsible positions.

The streets department will have exceeded its appropriation of $25,000 for the care and maintenance of streets and sidewalks by $1,200 by January 1, council was informed, after which the mayor was told by Councilman Davies that relative to the wages paid Streets Commissioner Glover ($1,620), that the commissioner is worth that sum. In fact, he praised Glover highly.

Argument Is Warm

Mayor Mayne charged that the city council had purchased an automobile for Councilman Butler, the city engineer and commissioner. Councilman Davies said the street commissioner uses an old car and the new machine has been used by the city engineer to haul RWD engineers to and from projects. The mayor charged that "he gets a salary and a car. I don't." He added that "I visit projects, too."

Councilman Davies remarked that the streets department head had found things "bad" when he assumed office. Mayor Mayne remarked that the city could expect help this year from the RWD toward care and maintenance of the streets after which Councilman Butler said he would like to have a new grader and a truck. He said that the city had paid $350 in repairs on the grader, which he said is too light, during the past three months.

"Until we can give labor something back we cannot get any new equipment without raising the taxes," Councilman Hoyland, head of the finance department informed colleagues. Butler reiterated the request for a grader and Hoyland agreed with Butler that it is too light. Butler said it had been used on slag streets and Hoyland said that "they have been digging too deep with it."

"The city bought this year a new car for the streets department," said Mayor Mayne when the contingent for the department was tentatively set at $4,000, instead of $3,500, which was decided upon for 1934. His ire increased, the mayor declared: "When the rest of you get to the point, I'll come back." He declared this was the second time he had sat down to help prepare the budget.

"Walked Out Before"

"You might as well stay. You walked out the last time when it came to give my department (parks and buildings) consideration," Alexander charged.

"You are not doing right and you are not showing the right spirit. We have listened to you and you should listen to us," Davies said.

"I cut my appropriations," the mayor retorted. "It is a question of who added to and who did not."

The mayor charged that men in the safety department had received paid vacations and the men in his department did not.

"You did not cut your department. You got all the equipment you wanted and you don't need anymore this year," replied Davies, adding "other men's departments are run down." Davies then turned in his chair and faced the mayor who stood ready to leave the room and declared: "We are not raising the taxes. We are meeting here to try and arrive at appropriations. These figures are tentative."

Hoyland told the other remaining members: "We have only so much money."

"He walked out on me when it came to considering my department. I expect courtesy from this council," said Alexander.

"He notified us a few days ago he is going to ask for raises," Butler remarked.

"You gentlemen take this thing too seriously. It is all a matter of transfers anyway," said Controller Wimer, who had been aiding council in the budget making.

The councilmen who were left in the meeting went through with their tentative budget making and adjourned at 5 p. m.

To meet this situation the Viner-Hardy report recommended among others the following:

1. Banks be encouraged to make sound working capital loans of six months maturity and to renew them indefinitely.

2. Six months commercial paper be made eligible for rediscount at the federal reserve banks.

3. Bank examiners be instructed to abandon the classification of loans as slow so that loans will be criticized only on the basis of their soundness.

4. Direct lending by federal reserve banks be abolished on the ground this activity conflicts with more important functions of these institutions.

5. Until lending practices by the commercial banks are liberalized the federal government should continue to make loans through the RFC or through a new intermediate credit system. The report did not indicate a preference.

temperature and glazed at a lower temperature.

Mass production, an American development he said has resulted in good china and glass ware being produced at a price within the range of ordinary people and said that the articles sold for five and ten cents today are the equal of the expensive articles made some years ago by hand, the difference being accounted for by mass production and a lowering of costs.

Natural Ceramics

"The earth is one of the greatest examples of ceramic art," he said. "Volcanoes are natural glass factories. Then he showed how the same elements were used in the manufacture of glass as were used in the manufacture of china except that the proportions were different.

As to the future Dr. Purdy was enthusiastic insofar as the ceramics art industries were concerned. "People are demanding more art in their everyday utensils,' said he. "Their kitchen and bathroom ware they will demand be more artistic. Cloisonne enameling is coming for the housewife's kitchen ware, and the product is going to be even better than it is. We have got to make even a better product and we will.

Following his address he conducted a forum for a brief period and answered questions. Dr. Purdy was introduced by W. Keith McAfee, president of the Universal Sanitary Manufacturing Company who himself was one of the speakers on the program. Mr. McAfee spoke as the dinner speaker, while Dr. Purdy followed in the regular meeting, after a brief intermission.

McAfee Speaks

Mr. McAfee had for his subject "Notes on Industry's Plan For Recovery" basing his remarks upon the action of the National Association of Manufacturer's convention in New York December 3-6. Included in the action of the association were recommendations for governmental action in the future. Among these were the avoiding of policies which tend to centralize control over industry, commerce, labor, finance and agriculture. Avoid legislation by administrative regulation and unwarranted delegation of authority. Balance the budget by adoption of policies which will stimulate business, restore employment, increase national income and permit cutting public expenses to fit reasonable taxes. Protect our banking system from all possibility of political control over private credit. Recognize the right of minorities or individuals to bargain for themselves, directly or through representatives of their own selection. Stop government competition which converts the taxpayers money into an instrument for his destruction. These and many other recommendations, thought provoking as they were handed on to the engineers by the speaker.

During the evening officers for the coming year were named by the Engineers. The same officers were re-elected as have served for the past year. They are: President, Carl Leis: vice president Lepere Matthews, treasurer, John P. Boyles secretary T. L. Paden, members of council at large, Charles Adams, and W. P. Lohrman.

The cast follows: Mrs. Harrison, Mildred Carson, Mr. Harrison, James Bradford, Mrs. Cadillac, Donna Jean Beall, Joan Clinton, Willie Leonhardt. Following the sketch Miss Leonhardt presented a solo dance.

She spoke of the noticeable loyalty of the people in the countries of England, France, Scotland and Ireland, where she visited, as being impressive, and then went on and told of noted English Gardens, how beautiful and well kept they were, even the smallest ones. Mrs. Duff had the pleasure, while in Europe of personally meeting George Bernard Shaw and George Drinkwater, at a high tea, which was attended by distinguished persons. Her talk was very interesting and instructive as well.

A small Christmas tree, in the living room, lent a festive atmosphere to the occasion and the hours were spent singing carols and playing various games. A "fish pond" in which pretty gifts were "hooked" by the girls featured, and was heaps of fun. The girls decided to pack a basket of foodstuffs for Christmas. Opening New Castle's Christmas holiday party season, the Rotary club members and their wives and lady friends assembled last night in the large dining hall of the Epworth M. E. church for a dinner and to enjoy, during the later evening hours, an offering of dramatic entertainment that would be hard to excel.

With gleeful gusto and with smiles unusually wide, the Rotary crowd sang "Santa Claus is Comin' to Town" toward the close of the evening and in skipped jolly old Santa Claus (Rotarian B. H. Kannenberg) to top the merrymaking off by handout out gifts to each and every one.

Earlier, the group had seen a capable cast of present and former senior high school dramatists present the four-act play, "The Loving Cup Man", under the direction of the high school's dramatic supervisor, Miss Clara M. Hartsuff.

After the play had been given, Mrs. Gerald McElhaney favored the audience with a humorous recitation, "The Ruggles' Christmas Dinner".

After the dinner, served by members of the Guild of the church, the group recessed for a 15-minute intermission before reconvening to watch the entertaining play. Up near the stage stood a table, decorated with an illuminated Christmas tree and surrounded by all the gifts which Santa Kannenberg was to distribute later.

Not a Rotarian or a guest was missed in the gift distribution as Santa, his bag packed with a mixture of good things, poured out his presents with the help of aides. Everyone got two presents, a jig-saw puzzle and some other comical gift. DeLace Cole presided as the group sang "Santa is Coming" for Saint Nick's enry.

Driung the early intermission and later in the evening, Gerald McElhaney, talented local pianist, played a group of popular selections.

Your Uncle Dudley — William Fletcher.

Grandma Dixon—Ruth Shale.

Ethlyn, a daughter—Ruth Wilkison.

Cyril—James Goodchild.

Christine, Dudley's friend—Charlotte Withers.

Charles Post—Edwin Harper.

A number of members of the Rotarians' families attended last night as guest.

TEA AND RECEPTION MARKS CLUB PROGRAM

The Christmas program of the New Castle Woman's club had a two fold purpose Monday afternoon in the Highland United Presbyterian church when the program committee, Mrs. H. L. Gormley, chairman, presented a musicale of voice and instrument, and the new members were greeted.

Beautiful poinsittas with a towering tree sparkling with icicles and covered with many colored lights formed a background for the entertainment.

Mrs. Archibald H. Davis, Jr., presided over a brief business session when the club appointed Mrs. F. F. Urey, Mrs. O. P. Brown and Mrs. S. W. Perry to assist the library board in trying to get the old post office building for a public library.

Mrs. R. G. Maxwell announced the various numbers on the entertaining program, which opened with Miss Helen Ewing playing Chopin's "Scherzo" after which Mrs. W. P. Felch, accompanied by Mrs. J. M. Pyle, sang: "Oh! Thou That Tellest Glad Tidings" and "The Messiah" and "Sleep, My Jesus" by Bartlett.

Miss Besse Gailey, told an interesting story of "Christmas Around the World" stressing the fact that religion has always been linked with the folk lore of the various countries, in the Christmas celebration. She had many beautifully wrapped packages, displaying different types of attractiveness for the holiday giving.

Miss Dorothy Fischer, who won the national piano contest the past summer at Kansas City, then played Brahm's "Rhapsody in D. Minor" and with the singing of "Silent Night" by the entire group, led by Mrs. H. L. Gormley, with Mrs. D. D. Scott at the piano, the program came to a close.

Mrs. Davis called the new members to the front of the room, where a receiving line was formed, with Mrs. W. K. Hugus and Mrs. C. E. Allen of the membership committee introducing the new members to the old as they passed along the line.

The women then went to the junior room of the church, where a table, glittering with a red and silver Christmas tree, lighted with tall red tapers in silver candelabra, greeted the eye and refreshments were served by the social committee, Mrs. O. P. Brown, chairman.

Mrs. David Jameson, Mrs. John Nothdurft, Mrs. John Butz and Miss Rebekah Browne poured.

January 7 will mark the date of the next meeting, when C. Hale Sipe will speak on "Pennsylvania." The meeting will be an evening one with the members of the Junior Woman's club as guests.

Party Held Saturday

An event of Saturday evening which proved most enjoyable, was the formal buffett supper party given by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thoman at their home on Park avenue, when they entertained a group of "Auld Lang Syne" friends.

Also, plans were discussed regarding their first meeting in the new year, January 8. Misses Alice Mae Huffman and Mary Whalen, chairmen of the International and Public Relations committees, will be in charge.

SHOP EARLY IN THE DAY

SHOP early in the day.

Salesmen and owner alike are asking the Christmas shopper to remember this slogan this week, the last week before Christmas. Shop early in the day and help yourself. Shop early and help everybody else.

For the shopper who just can't get down town until the last minute the stores are being kept open evenings the latter part of the week. But this shouldn't be taken advantage of by people who can get down in the forenoon or early afternoon.

Shopping early means you get a chance to look over the stock. It gets you out of the store without being jostled and crowded and rushed. It gives the store owner some idea of what stock he will have to replace hurriedly and what lines he will have to feature to get out whole.

Last of all it gives the salesgirls a chance for a Christmas Day out of bed. Standing on one's feet all day and all evening, trying to please a Christmas shopping crowd, is a tiresome job.

The salesgirl asks you, the store owner asks you, and you will do yourself a favor by shopping as early as you can this week!

THERE IS NO FINANCIAL SANTA CLAUS

One of the greatest obstacles in the way of curing the growing tax problems is the ancient human desire to get something for nothing.

That desire is at the forefront, in times such as the present when vast sums are being spent for direct relief and for public works projects. Practically every state is making an effort to obtain a larger share of federal funds than neighboring commonwealths. One of the most potent "sales talks" of high state officials is that they have been instrumental in obtaining federal grants for their constituents.

The idea has gotten around that this money is "free". And so it is—to the extent that the state pays nothing for it directly. Yet every cent of the money comes from the federal treasury—it is made possible by federal borrowings which are secured by liens on every enterprise, every piece of property, every investment in the nation. Interest payments on the bonds must be obtained through taxation—and when the time for amortization comes, the money must also be raised by taxing the public.

Generally speaking, the federal grants are proportioned to states on the basis of population, the percentage of needy being about the same in one part of the country as another. As a result, the people of the various states will have to pay back the money they get precisely as they would if it were secured by state bonds. The only advantage the federal government has is in borrowing money at a slightly lower interest rate than a state.

This is not to argue that relief isn't necessary—it is. But it is also a fact that states are obtaining money for luxury projects which they do not need, and whose contribution to the welfare of the people is far less than it should be, in the light of their cost.

Once the public learns that no one in history has managed to devise a way of getting something of value for nothing, it will demand that the states, as a whole, stop looking for a financial Santa Claus, and use more common sense.

A BRIGHTER CHRISTMAS

From every front the Christmas news is cheerful. The swiftest flow of Christmas spending in years is swirling in on the nation's merchants. A survey shows that Christmas trade in many cities is at the high pitch of the 1929 and 1930 seasons and that in some localities it is 33 1-3 per cent above last year. Even sharper gains are expected in the next few days.

All of this, of course, comes under the general classification of glad tidings. In fact, it gives a peculiar appropriateness to the news from New England that the demand for trees is unprecedented. In Vermont alone, more than 1,200,000 trees were shipped, while in Maine and New Hampshire huge piles of trees were shipped south.

These are signs that many millions of Americans, young and old, will have a happier Christmas than they have enjoyed in several years. There are countless others, however, for whom the more fortunate members of society must make adequate provision if the Christmas spirit is to prevail in the land.

CALENDAR GIFTS

In former years we used to get so many calendars, largely from commercial houses, that it took a little artificial enthusiasm to pump up proper gratitude for them.

But in these times when people look at a nickel with longing affection, many concerns that used to send out calendars have adjourned this nice habit. If we don't accept those our friends send us with suitable interest, we may be altogether lacking in them in future.

Inspiring quotations for every day or week is a noble kind of gift. It is like inviting your friend to go with you to some mountain top, where you see above the murky airs, and get a vision of far horizons. When we begin the day with the philosophers, we don't spend it with the grouches and knockers.

No friend seems quite so wonderful after you meet the other people he likes.

THIS FUSS ABOUT SHAVING

Men are odd creatures. One of the funniest things about the species is shaving...When they are youngsters they can hardly wait for that day when they begin to shave. Then they spend the rest or their days moaning about the tyranny of shaving. They are always wishing they didn't have to shave. And they are divided into two classes: Those that shave at night just before going to bed and those who shave in the morning just after getting out of bed. If they shave at night their faces don't look clean the next morning or all the next day and their wives object. If they shave in the morning they must get up 15 minutes earlier and slug-a-beds don't like that.

Some men use safety razors. Some use the old straight edge razor, and are very proud. Those who use safety razors boast about how long they can use a blade. They buy fancy sharpeners or they strop the blades on the fleshy part of the palm. The straight-edgers are prouder fellows, however. They feel "superior" because they shave as grandfather did; grandfather, who used to have a case with seven razors in it, one for each day in the week...Some shavers use a tube of cream; others lather the brush around in a cup with a cake of soap in the bottom. When we were a kid we were ambitious to have our own cup on a shelf in a barber shop some day with our name on it in Old English letters; but somehow we never did get around to it. We shave at home.

Some men make a great to-do about shaving; and monopolize the bathroom for half an hour. Others lather the face, give it a fast once-over and that's enough. We're in the second class...Men freqeuntly complain that they have a heavy beard but a tender skin; we have caught ourselves doing that many a time.

Farmers used to shave only once a week. When city dwellers go camping they prove their freedom by growing a beard. Nearly every male tries to grow one at least once in his life. Old-time bartenders had handle-bar mustaches. Chinese bandits have long, shoe-string mustaches. Professors and doctors used to have the Van Dyke beards. British officers have close-cropper mustaches. The old Romans were smoothe shaven. The roadside advertising man begs us to:

"Pity all the mighty Caesars,
They pulled each whisker out with tweezers!"

These men spend much of their time laughing at women. If women were'nt so kind-hearted, they'd laugh at all the fuss men make about shaving.

CHOOSE AND ENUNCIATE YOUR WORDS CAREFULLY

Are you a lazy talker?

Don't pronounce half your words so that they are misunderstood.

Don't let your voice down to a mumbling tone at the end of your sentences.

You slur your consonants and are quite put out when people say they can't understand your talk without paying strict attention.

You don't blame yourself as having faulty enunciation.

You don't realize that often you are thinking of something other than what you are talking about.

Your mental laziness causes you to think it too much effort to try to speak correctly and well.

You think in a confused manner, and that makes your conversation unintelligible at times.

You do not choose your words carefully, but use whatever comes into your head and often it is not very elegant language.

You confuse the meaning of words and think it does not matter much.

That is just where you are mistaken—it matters a great deal.

You may not have much money and you may not have an exalted position, but if you can speak good English, free from idioms and clearly enunciated, you will be recognized as a person of distinction.

IN HOSPITAL

I have seen them with their money at the bedsides of their dying
Standing helpless, sorrow stricken,
just like other people, crying,
And I've heard their lips repeating prayers as other people pray them,
Saying pleas for help and pity just as other people say them.

I have heard them giving witness to their folly and their blindess
As they've suddenly remembered some sad moment of unkindness.
For the griefs of life are common and alike we all must share them
And the proud, like other people, have to suffer and to bear them.

Comes the time when money fails us,
and when fame is just a label.
'Tis another case that's going to the operating table,
And the nurses and the doctors hear the self-same sad expressions
From the pale and anxious loved ones of the trades and the professions.

We are brothers in misfortune.
'Neath the salf same blanket thickness
Lie the rich man and the poor man in their fevered days of sickness
'Neath the self-same pain they languish, and they fret and sigh
the same way
And get better if God wills it, and if not, they die the same way.

One of the places where Missionaries don't seem to make much headway is in China. The heathen Chinese ought to be left in his natural state.

It is noteworth, however, that privately owned utilities did not raise their rates during the depression. The government, which enjoys a monopoly of the mail business, boosted the price of postage stamps fifty per cent.

Which is the better system of handling crime news? To print all the facts, as the press of America does, or to print none of them, as in Italy, where men are tried, convicted and executed secretly?

A New York advertisement reads, "Judge Your Gin by Its Origin."

A lot of fellows are in an excellent position to do that very thing. They have been present at its inception, and have followed it through from bathtub to bottling.

Tame elephants, we are told, have little standing with the wild herd.

Thank goodness, those 28 billion dollars we owe are only 59-cent dollars.

Since the boys and gals do not have to have their taxes paid so they can vote you are going to see some queer elections. Those who do not want to pay taxes voted that law into the Constitution of Pennsylvania. Those who do not want to pay and don't unless they have to, are not doing much for this country.

The G. O. P. is at it's lowest ebb. But long study of the tides in the affairs of men as in the sea teaches us that the lower ebb the mightier the inrush and height of the tide when it returns.

New Castle has been chosen on many occasions as a good place to hold big conventions because it has the facilities. And that's not a bad advertisement. It also brings lots of real money to town.

But sometimes you think it your integrity when it is only your vanity.

All we need to stop dishonesty is a universal resolve to make it unprofitable.

THE REAL THING

A woman writer is tickled pink over figures showing that 11 per cent. more men than women are crazy, and our answer to that is to fall back on the good old argument to the effect that "you can prove anything by statistics."

Personally, we never take statistics seriously, unless they back us up.

Ted Dealey, Dallas (Tex.) News and Journal: A newspaper is, in character, no different than an ordinary human being. There are newspapers that are gentlemen. There are newspapers that are cads. Why is it necessary to seek any other norms than those that apply to persons? For, back of it all, a newspaper really is a person, or rather a collection of persons. Every line of news in a newspaper is the work of some kind of a reporter. The most trivial item was written by some individual and similarly, the most outstanding and important piece of national or international news in any paper on any one day came from the typewriter of a individual—a reporter.

Nothing like asking for plenty unless it turns out you get nothing.

Jails As Crime Breeders Doomed.

Canada Has Troubles, Too.

Central Press

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The federal government is going after one crime breeding area—through slum clearance. It soon may go after another—through urging possible elimination of jails for first offenders.

The most fundamental cause of crime, economic starvation of families (maldistribution of income), may work itself out in the broader scale of economic and social readjustments later.

The county jail, the workhouse, the prison farm, all have been described as the worst contaminators of crime we have.

Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson of the Fifth United States circuit court of appeals, Houston, Tex., told the crime conference in Washington what he thought of jail conditions.

He described county jails in the southern district of Texas "so medieval and barbarous and so contrary to the ordinary principles of democracy and social justice that I was shocked beyond expression."

The judge added:

"I found that men with lungs and hearts, nerves and brains like mine were penned up for months on end with hardly a single thing to do. They had no access to the open air, no opportunity for exercise except in the bull pen and runarounds inside of dark walls.

"No provision was made for their worthwhile occupation or their improvement, no segregation of prisoners was attempted, no processes of restoration begun. The convicted and the unconvicted, the beginner and the hardened were condemned to a congregate in a life necessarily degrading."

AID FOR PRISONERS

We print a letter on which perhaps we are a bit late:

"At Sing Sing, in San Quentin, in Fulton Tower prison, on the Georgia chain gangs, and in other penitentiaries and jails throughout the United States, hundreds of innocent men are enduring years of heart-breaking confinement for crimes they did not commit. These men are political prisoners. Such fantastic charges as 'criminal syndicalism', 'sedition', and 'inciting to riot' have been used by bitterly prejudiced judges and juries to put them behind bars.

"When these men are sent to prison it is not they alone who suffer; their wives and children are left in destitution and want. It is the function of the prisoners' relief fund of the International Labor Defense to send each political prisoner and each family of a prisoner a small monthly allowance. The following quotations from letters we have received indicate the manner in which our efforts are appreciated: 'I surely don't want to face starvation as I did last winter, before I heard from you people.' . . . 'I tried to get help from the government relief, but I did not get anything but hard words. But when I think back over all you have done for us I feel happy as can be.' . . . 'I was so glad of the three dollars you sent that I had to write you all a few lines to let you know how glad I was.' . . . 'What a great surprise and yet such a pleasant one was your letter and the five dollars.'

"The prisoners' relief fund is conducting a Christmas drive for funds for political prisoners and their families. These men have gone to jail because they tried to improve the lot of all of us. Help us help them and their families. Send a contribution to the prisoners' relief fund of the International Labor Defense, 80 East Eleventh street, New York City.

"ROSE BARON, Secretary."

EXPORT CREDIT GUARANTEE

A major new development in the matter of increasing exports is reported by the Alexander Hamilton Institute, New York.

"To stimulate American exports, an export insurance guaranty scheme is under consideration whereby the government would guarantee export credits up to 60 or 70 per cent to facilitate purchasing of merchandise in this country by foreigners unable to obtain dollar exchange.

"The export-import banks established especially to finance foreign trade have failed to function as expected, and so far their operations have been confined to financing a few minor transactions."

CANADA'S TROUBLES

Canada, too, is considering an NRA. Maybe this case, described in the Toronto Star, is one of the reasons:

"A $10 a week grocery clerk, working 84 hours—18½ hours on Saturday—was described as an average example of the underpaid chain store employe, to the mass buying commission this afternoon, during its investigation of a Montreal food chain."

Rexford G. Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, is credited with President Roosevelt's urge to increase imports to increase farm exports.

When Tugwell returned from Europe, he urged world barter, to get world trade moving again. He said the time had come for the United States to exchange farm products for foreign goods.

TODAY Is The Day

By CLARK KINNAIRD Copyright 1934 Central Press

TUESDAY DECEMBER 18.

The World War Day-by-Day— Dec. 18, 1914—The millions of men east and west were fighting for any number of reasons and chiefly because they were told; but they were waging their war at this particular time because of the murder of a man, whose birthday this was—Francis Ferdinand von Este, Archduke of Austria, born at Graz 51 years before.

The man for whom Austria-Hungary plunged the world into war had been cordially hated by nearly everybody. He had to renounce the right of his wife to bear him any children possessing rights of succession to the throne. His uncle, the Emperor rarely allowed him in the imperial present. So he spent a great deal of his time in seclusion at his estate at Konopist.

There he showed he had an abnormal lust for killing. In a single day he brought down over 4,000 head of game. His hearing became permanently affected by the detonation of his guns. The castle was a mausoleum with 300,000 mounted trophies, each head carefully numbered and labeled with the date and spot where Francis Ferdinand had achieved the killing.

The big empire had been so eager to go to war with little Serbia that the death of hated Francis Ferdinand was welcomed as an excuse six months before. Now it was a state of collapse. Its armies were suffering defeat on all fronts. The army which struggled back from Serbia on this date had lost 100,000 men. Austria had abandoned all of Galicia save the territory about Cracow. Upward of 35,000 miles with a population of 10,000,000 had thus been temporarily or permanently lost by Emperor Francis Joseph—a complete set-off, for the time being, to the conquests Germany had made in August in the west.

History Up-to-Date— Dec. 18, 1398—Timur-i-Leng, called Tamerlane, 63 year old Mongol emperor captured Delhi, capitol of India and ordered his victory to be commemorated by the erection of a tower of human heads.

More than 100,000 men and women were massacred to provide the heads, but this was one of the smaller massacres in history! Tamerlane was a barbarian, but—

Titus, Roman general had 1,100,000 Jews put to the sword in Jerusalem, 70 A. D.

Cassius, Roman general, put to death 300,000 inhabitants of Seleucia, 165 A. D.

Emperor Probus of Rome, had 400,000 Huns slain in Gaul, 277 A. D.

Dec. 18, 1787—New Jersey ratified the Constitution and became the 3rd state. Motto: Liberty and Prosperity. Flower: violet.

In its State constitution, New Jersey enfranchised women, the first colony or state to do so. But it repealed woman suffrage in 1807: women were declared unequal to equal rights!

Dec. 18, 1865—Slavery became unlawful forever in the United States and territories: the ratification of the 13th amendment was proclaimed.

A northern state, Delaware, rejected the amendment!

Indian rain wizards, aerial combers and various other wonder-workers have been claiming credit for the recent rainfall. The Fourth Estate should not be omitted from the honor list. Witness the quick results in Wisconsin, where the following want ad appeared in the Central Inter-County Leader:

"WANTED—About one inch of rain for the coming week-end in the vicinity of Trade River and the rest of the country. Address Herl Erickson, Trade River, Wis."

Five hours after the paper went to press a half-inch of rain fell at Trade River, as well as all over northwestern Wisconsin. And more rain fell a few days later.

From which the nawspaper man may quite unblushingly, draw two conclusions: 1. The power of the press has been vastly underestimated. 2. It pays to advertise.

Council Against Any Tax Raise

Will Shave Budget It Is Indicated At Meeting On Monday

During council's attempt to set appropriations for 1933 yesterday at city hall, Finance Director Hoyland said the anticipated revenue for 1933 is $378,364.58, and the appropriations as set tentatively totalled $395,000, without consideration of the certificates out but covered by a city ordinance.

He gave the assessed valuation as $50,869,460 and said a tax millage of 11 1-2, would bring a revenue of $384,998. He added that the anticipated shrinkage in taxes was placed at 25 percent which would leave $343,364. The city expects to realize $38,000, from various receipts which would give the city $378,364.58 for operating expenses.

"That means shaving. We cannot go above that millage" said Councilman Davies.

"We would be murdered if we did" laughed Councilman Hoyland.

He said there are delinquent taxes amounting to $395,564 and the anticipated collection on that is estimated at $39,564, or 10 percent. Hoyland said "this will be a 'backlog' for $75,000 worth of certificates in indebtedness for two years.

Controller Wimer informed council that the city has unpaid bills amounting to $30,000 and Hoyland remarked that $28,000 in notes, must be paid out of $100,000, to be borrowed after January 1, with which to pay current debts until taxes start coming in.

POULTRY DEALER IS FOUND SLAIN

Accuse Employe Of Aged Man With Slaying, Police Claim Confession

(International News Service)

DOVER, Del., Dec. 18.—The gruesome murder of an aged poultry dealer was uncovered here today when state detectives, acting under orders from Deputy U. S. Attorney W. J. Storey, found the body of D. J. Pierre, 63, interred in a shallow grave in a hen house on his farm between Viola and Selton.

Immediately after the finding of the body, state police arrested J. C. Morgan, 53, an employe on the farm. After changing his story several times during questioning, Morgan was reported by police to have admitted the slaying.

Police said Morgan confessed killing Pierre with an iron bar and burying the body last Saturday.

Morgan, it was learned by authorties, had been seeking to purchase Pierre's farm and had made a small down payment. Police alleged Morgan admitted killing Pierre because he thought that by so doing he would gain possession of the property.

Still Applying For Compensation

Several Belated Applications For Adjusted Service Certificates Received

Although the Adjusted Service Certificate, commonly referred to by veterans at "The Bonus" was made available to veterans in 1925, there are still some veterans who never applied, as attested by recent applications through the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross.

All applications must be filed by January 2, 1935, in order to qualify for its receipt, veterans are warned.

Application is made by the veteran, or in the event of his death, by his widow, minor children, or dependent father or mother.

This is not a new bonus, as some veterans have been misinformed, but is the adjusted Service Certificate, issued in 1925 and maturing in 1945.

Erie Girl Changes Story Of Tragedy

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 18.—Authorities were confronted today with the contradictory statement of 14-year-old Imogene Schultz, lying critically wounded in a hospital, relative to her shooting.

Contradicting an earlier statement that she knew her mother, Mrs. Ruth Mitchell Schultz, was going to shoot her, the girl told Coroner W. G. Strobe that she did not know her mother planned to sheet her.

While the girl's candition made further questioning impossible, Strobe said that his verdict on the death of the mother and the wounding of the girl would probably be "suicide and attempted murder."

Your'e wrong If You Believe—That Christmas always has been December 25. It hasn't.

For centuries the nativity of Jesus Christ was celebrated on March 25, January 6 and other days. Observance of the feast on Dec. 25 was not introduced into Jerusalem until 440 A. D.

Also "You're wrong if you believe that nothing illegal can be sold legally," reports H. S. Vogel, Milan, Mo.

"The 13 month calendar is certainly illegal but it is legal to sell it" Mr. Vogel is an advocate of the Solus calendar.

Also, "Your'e wrong if you believe that James Watts was the first man to make a steam engine."—David Cerna, M. D., San Antonio, Tex.

"Steam was used to turn a globe by Her of Alexandria, a Greek who lived a century before Christ. What Watt really did was to make an engine invented by Newcomen in 1705 work entirely by steam. Others had tried operating them with the help of air."

Girl Risks Life To Get Bandits

Reveal How Chicago Gangster Was Trapped By Officers

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 18.—Taking her life in her hands, Miss Genevieve Roth of Boonville, Ind., pretty young stenographer in the Indiana attorney general's office, lived in the Chicago underworld and gave much of the evidence that led to the arrest of Joseph Burns, one of the few survivors of the Dillinger gang, J. Edward Barce, Indiana deputy attorney general, said today.

Barce, who generally was recognized as the under-cover worker, who "turned in" Burns and who promised to round up other notorious criminals associated with Burns and John Dillinger, gave full credit to his youthful feminine aide.

"For the last month, Miss Roth and I have lived in the criminal haunts of Chicago," Barce said. "She made friends among the male members of the Burns and Touhy gangs and I played their molls. She has been with Burns a number of times.

"Why, that little girl has nerves of steel. Her life was in danger time after time and she never flinched.

"I had to think fast a number of times or both of us would have been put on the spot by some of the gangsters who thought we were their pals.

"But we got the information we wanted from them without being found out.

"Miss Roth said she enjoyed her experience, but she was certainly angry because the Chicago police did not let her in on the finish, which came with the arrest of Burns."

Burglars Call, Leave An Infant

(International News Service)

MACON, Ga.—A new type of burglary has developed here.

Mrs. Marvin Maxwell returned home from church and discovered her house had been broken into during her absence. A thorough search revealed nothing missing.

Instead, one article had been added—a three-day-old baby girl.

She called police to come and get the foundling, but by the time they arrived she had become attached to the child.

"Isn't she a darling?" the woman cooed to police.

She finally refused to let the officers take the infant from her.

Wants Damages For Irish Birth

(International News Service)

LONDON—Because she was born in Ireland, an unidentified woman made a demand in police court for a $25,000 damage judgment against the British government. Bursting into the courtroom during a session the woman marched up the aisle and handed the magistrate a letter in which she demanded 5,000 pounds damages.

"What does this all mean?" the magistrate asked.

"It means," she shouted, "that I was born in Ireland under the Britisth government. My father is Scottish and he wouldn't have gone to live in Ireland if you hadn't taken possession of it. Your government is responsible for my being born in Ireland. I think I am entitled to compensation."

The flabbergasted judge ordered the woman to a hospital for examination.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK - - By R. J. Scott

Cites Large Expansion Of Public Library In Present Headquarters

The librarian has been asked how the present use made by the public of the library compares with that of 1926, when the public library was moved from the Washington Street second floor store room to the present building. The question can be partly answered by a few comparative figures. For instance, the circulation of the first year on Jefferson street was 99,332, with that of last year was 351,176, an increase of 254 percent.

Large Increase

The book collection which numbered 17,897 has grown to 37,187 an increase of more than 100 percent.

The only branch in 1926 was housed in the basement of Mahoning school. The moving of this branch to its own rented quarters on Wabash avenue, the opening of South Side and East Side branches, the establishments of library service at Shenango Valley Hospital and later at Jameson Memorial Hospital and New Castle Hospital, are all developments of 1926-1930. East Side and South Side branches have also outgrown their first homes and moved to more commodious quarters.

All ordering of books, cataloguing and preparing them for the shelves, and most of the reference work are done at the main library. There is no branch which has not proportionately more room to carry on its circulation work than the main library, where not only circulation, but all other kinds of work are done.

More Shelving Added

Shelving has been built into every available space. Last winter some additional shelving was added to the tops of the present cases, making it necessary to use a ladder or stool to reach the upper shelves. Shelves have also been placed in the window frames in the stack room. The third floor is used for shelving books seldom used. All the shelves are crowded most of the time, and in summer when fewer books are in circulation it becomes a real problem where to shelve the additional ones.

The opening of the Junior-Adult Department also dates in this period. This department is designed for the child under fourteen who has read much and outgrown most of the books in the children's department, and for the young person above fourteen who, has not yet, through lack of opportunity or interest, read many of the older juveniles.

Reference work is done for all the women's clubs, and for any individual man, woman, or child, who has a question.

Staff Increased

The staff has grown from six persons who manned the Washington Street room to ten: Chief librarian, Reference librarian, Cataloguer, Children's librarian, Branch Supervisor, secretary and four other assistants. The pages, who work part time, have increased in number from two to four. The American Library Association's ideal of circulation in relation to the staff is an average of 20,000 books per staff member. The average in the New Castle library is over 35,000 per staff member or 75 percent above the standard.

The library patrons recognize the crowded conditions. The exchange of books must take place in the reading room, a faulty but unavoidable arrangement. Books are hard to find because of the lack of room to shelve hem properly. The telephone is a necessity, but a disturber of the peace of any reading room. Not long ago a patron was heard to say that she "came earlier today, because last evening she couldn't get a seat." The reading room attendance has increased 36 percent within this seven year period. During November the adult reading room averaged 90 readers a day. As the seating capacity is 30 chairs it will be readily seen that the room is often crowded.

In short the work in the present building has expanded to the same relative point reached in the Washington Street room eight years ago. No further expansion will be possible. While the library needs books there is no room to shelve them, and no space for more chairs and tables.

RURAL SCHOOLS TO CLOSE FRIDAY

Holiday Vacation Period Will Begin Day Before Christmas

Schools in the rural district will end their sessions Friday for the Christmas vacation period, County Superintendent of Schools John C. Syling, stated today.

The vacation period will not be the same for all schools, however, as some of the schools have time to make up for forced closing during the school term.

Some few schools may start their second half of the year on December 31, while others will not open until after New Year's. For the most part, they will resume their sessions on January 2. This matter is left to the discretion of the various township school boards.

Funds raised through the sale of Christmas Seals are used to promote better health by educating children and adults in the ways of healthy living and by helping to find early cases of tuberculosis.

In growing bulbs indoors in moss, one should be careful not to drown them by keeping the moss too wet, or to let them die for lack of moisture by keeping the moss too dry.

Gun Inventions Turned Down By Naval Bureau

Invention To Improve Fire And Accuracy Of Rifles Was Refused

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.— The Navy department in 1926 rejected the invention of two marine officers, which improved the fire and accuracy of rifles and machine guns, it was revealed today at the senate arms inquiry.

Curtis D. Wilbur was secretary of the navy at the time. The inventors were the late Col. Richard Cutts and his son, Lt. Richard Cutts, Jr., marine officers. The invention, since developed and used by arms manufacturers, eliminates "chokes" in shot guns and the "kick" from all types of small arms.

Cutts was the White House marine aide to President Roosevelt from March to November 1933. He served prior to that at the Philadelphia Marine barracks.

Lieut. Cutts told the senate committee he and his father offered the invention to Secretary Wilbur for the government's use "with no string attached."

"We invented the Cutts compensator, which eliminates need of chokes in shot guns, and reduces the recoil in rifles and machine guns," said Cutts. "We offered it to the secretary of the navy with no strings attached. He did not desire it. We then filed our own patents and developed it in our own time and at our own expense."

Cutts said he asked the Navy department whether it wished the patents "placed in the secret archives" so they wouldn't become known to the public. The reply was "no."

"Did your offer include any request for a bonus or compensation?"

"No sir."

New Airplanes Will Be Built

Plan Three-Year Building Program To Add 600 More Planes To Air Service

MORE MEN NEEDED FOR ARMY POSTS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Plans to carry out Secretary of War Dern's recommendation for a 3-year building program to add 600 new fighting airplanes to the army's air service have been drafted by the army high command.

These plans call for purchase of 200 fighting airplanes of the latest type, including bombers, pursuit and attack machines, during each of the next three fiscal years beginning July 1, 1935.

These machines would be in addition to the 300 airplanes needed each year for replacement purposes, thus actually calling for a building and replacement program of 500 planes each year for the next three fiscal years.

Need More Planes.

This building and replacement program would be in line with the recommendations made by the Baker board last summer following its investigation of the army air corps. The board, in its report, declared a minimum of 2,321 serviceable airplanes were indispensible to national defense.

The 500 planes-per-year building and replacement program would bring the air corps up to this level at the end of three years.

Dern's recommendation for the 3-year building program was contained in his annual report, made public today. He also called attention to the fact that the army was short approximately 50,000 men of the number needed to carry out "efficiently" the duties of the regular army and warned that postponement of a material increase in the strength of the military establishment "involves an element of risk."

Woman Operates Big Mercer County Farm

Mrs. Fannie Bell Handles 225 Acres Just As Well As Any Man Could Do

Managing a farm is supposed to be a man's job, but there are exceptions to all rules, according to an old adage. The exception in this instance proves to be Mrs. Fannie Beal of Perry township, Mercer county, who manages a farm of 225 acres, and does it well, according to her friends and neighbors.

At the present time she has a herd of 43 Guernsey cattle, and five head of hogs. Corn was one of the biggest crops of the past year for winter feed. The farm produced 550 bushels of oats, 406 bushels of wheat, and 160 bushels of buckwheat. This made the total grain production more than 3,100 bushels.

Along with the grain was a crop of 2,200 bushels of potatoes, with a 400-bushel to the acre yield. Fifty tons of hay were put up, and 15 acres of wheat were planted this fall.

Mrs. Beal takes a hand in the affairs of her farm, and is up and doing at an early hour. She has milked as many as 75 cows in one day.

There are approximately one thousand languages and dialects spoken today.

New Relief Head Favors Cash Dole

R. L. Johnson Says Phila. System Is "Model For Entire Country"

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Robert L. Johnson, who has been appointed by Governor-elect George Earle as Pennsylvania relief administrator, stated here that he favored cash relief and would urge its adoption wherever it appeared feasable.

"Cash relief at present is a controversial subject," Johnson asserted. "Whether it will be given in Pittsburgh and other cities under my administration I can not say as yet. Generally speaking, I favor it over commodity relief, but we must investigate conditions in the various localities to determine its advisability."

Johnson said that he has had several investigators studying relief in Philadelphia and that their reports favored the system.

"I understand that the method of dispensing relief in Philadelphia is a model relief system for the entire country. Many cities, in other states as well as Pennsylvania, are adopting Philadelphia's plan. It is as good as it is unique," Johnson declared.

The new relief head explained that, as a Connecticut Republican, he was invited by Pennsylvania's Democratic governor-elect to administer relief in "the most efficient manner possible." Johnson said he is an old friend of Governor Earle.

The new relief administrator announced that his first two months in office, beginning January 15, will be spent in studying conditions and needs of the various sections and cities of the state. After that, he said, his relief plans will be put in operation.

Johnson remarked that the present relief administrator, Eric Biddle, has invited him to confer with him in Harrisburg on the problems of the state, and this he said he intends doing after January 1.

LIBRARY BOOKS BEING RECASED

Four RWD workers met at the New Castle free public library today to start a project involving complete re-conditioning of books in the main building and all of the branch libraries.

The library had the choice of having a large group of workers take part in the project and have the work completed more rapidly, or of having a small group working for a longer period. As the room in the library is limited, the small group was preferred.

Children of Athens entertain with music and song in the streets on Christmas eve.

5 shopping days to Christmas

ATHENS

The Greek Christmas comes on January 6, according to our calendar. The music heard on Christmas Eve in the streets or cafes or entry to the cook shop is oriental, a strange relic of Turkish dominion. An empty earthenware jar, covered at the top with the dried skin of a sheep's or pig's bladder, is slung over a boy's shoulder. He drums on it with the fingers of both hands, and there being no bottom to the jar, its shape gives it resonance. Another boy strikes a triangle. The musical metallic sound of one and the muffled sound of the other, accompanying the chant of the young voices, makes a quaint impression.

Purported Terms Of Russia-France Alliance Given

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 18 —Purported terms of an alliance between Soviet Russia and France were published today by the Evening Star

The pact is a "military agreement" the newspaper said, binding Russia to help France with munitions and food in event of war but not troops.

"The alliance," said the Star, "is aimed at Japan on one hand and Germany on the other. These powers are indicated as the most probable adversaries of the signatories."

(Editor's Note: The French government has denied existence of a Franco-Russian military pact.)

"If Russia is attacked by Japan," the Star said, "France has undertaken immediately to supply the Soviet with war materials valued at 4,000,000,000 francs.

"In the event of a Franco-German war, the Soviet will furnish France with grain to the same value.

"France and Russia agree not to make a bi-lateral agreements with Germany."

It was stated Russia agreed to manufacture French airplane engines while France will send 400 midget tanks to Russia in event of conflict, and agreement has been reached to establish direct wireless contact between the general staffs of the two countries.

The supposed pact would be in force for five years. The Soviet embassy here promptly denied the story.

Will Try To Pass Car Insurance Act

Also Proposed To Inflict Penalty On Persons Not Paying Damage Losses

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18—The next legislature will be asked to consider an act, requiring every motor vehicle registered in Pennsylvania to be covered by a public liability insurance policy.

A tentative draft of the act in question will be submitted to the legislative body by the Philadelphia Bar Association.

The present form of the proposed act provides for the regulation of risk classification, underwriting rules, premium rates and schedule or merit rating plans of insurance companies issuing such policies.

It also proposes the loss of registration and operating privileges by any person failing to pay at l st $1000 due on account of a judgement obtained in an action for personal injuries or death caused by the operation or use of a motor vehicle.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Dec. 18—How an ingenious woman overcame the lack of transportation during the San Francisco general strike was revealed here by Postmaster William H. McCarthy of San Francisco.

"She told me that she must reach a sick child in Los Angeles and wanted to be mailed by parcel post so a mail truck could pick her up and take her to the station," the postmaster said. "We couldn't mail her but we did get her to the station in a mail truck."

BORAH WANTS MACY AS CHAIRMAN

Henry P. Fletcher

W. Kingsland Macy

Claiming he will rally the votes of Republican national committeemen from 16 states—enough to call a meeting—Senator William E. Borah is planning a reorganization of the G. O. P. national committee. It is Borah's intention, his friends assert, to replace Chairman Henry P. Fletcher with W. Kingsland Macy. Macy was ousted prior to the election as New York state committee chairman when he accused Old Guard Republicans of being in league with powerful utility interests. The New York Republicans then went down to their worst defeat, and Macy, looked upon as a progressive, once more loomed as a power. He is a persistent fighter.

Find Americans Still Cling To 1-Family House

Not Much Demand Is Shown For Apartment Houses

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Despite the growth of the apartment house, a survey of housing conditions by the Department of Commerce has disclosed that Americans still cling to the old single family house for residential purposes.

The survey, which was conducted in 64 middle class cities, showed that about 8 per cent of construction during the past 10 years in these communities was of the single family dwelling.

This desire upon the part of families has given rise to a condition which is causing concern in many large cities. To obtain cheaper building sites, citizens have gone into the suburbs to construct homes.

Thousands of great three-story mansions in big cities, now located adjoining or in downtown business sections, have virtually been abandoned. Because of their size few people can afford to own them, tenants prefer modern apartments and they are not always readily adapted to building purposes.

Increased use of the automobile may solve the question. Thousands of old residences are being torn down and he land turned into parking lots in the large cities.

The Commerce Department survey also disclosed a large percentage of city dwellers without the modern conveniences generally supposed to accompany city life.

Twenty-five per cent of the residence units in the 64 cities were without bathtubs, and one-fifth of them lacked indoor toilet facilities.

Inspectors listed 2.3 per cent of the dwellings, which include tenement houses, as unfit for human habitation.

Officials believe that the survey shows a strong need for new housing construction in the country. During the past five years housing construction has dropped 50 per cent.

Why This Wife Won The Prize

(International News Service)

BERLIN—Frau Ilse Neumann is a married woman just like you.

She keeps house without a maid, just like you.

And she has six children like some of you, all your troubles and pet peeves.

She likes nice clothing, and who doesn't?

She does her own washing, just like you.

But here the similarity ends.

She does the 75 meters in 11.8 seconds.

And she marched 20 kilometers in one hour 50.6 seconds.

In 6:12.4 she swam 200 meters.

She is an expert "turner" and rides well.

And for her athletic ability she was awarded the Reich's gold Sport badge.

In her spare time she knits.

Alumni Quick To Replace Building

(International News Service)

HIRAM, O.—Nineteen hundred and thirty four college spirit doesn't have to come in bottles.

Within 24 hours after the old, ivy-covered administration building of Hiram College was burned with a loss of $125,000, telegrams and messages began to pour into the college offices from graduates of the school pledging money.

Work on a new building was started a few days after the fire ravaged the old.

If you charge a vet too much for service, it's a crime. If you charge him too little for lumber, it's a crime. Let's see you respect that one.

Millions Of Bats Return To Plains As Drought Ends

Foe Of Mosquitoes They Need Stagnant Water Pools For Eats

International News Service)

CARLSBAD, N. M.—Bats—millions of them—again sweep out of the hidden depths of the famous Carlsbad Caverns each night to forage over the plains of eastern New Mexico and southern Texas.

Their return after an absence of nearly a year has given tudents of the nighi-lying creatures something to ponder over.

For years the cavern's bats, estimated to number 3,000,000, have been one of the attractions of the great caves. Tourists usually stayed at the cavern entrance until nightfall to witness the outpouring of the whirring clouds of the tiny winged mammals.

During the winter months they hibernate. In the spring they again appear in great numbers

Early this year but few bats appeared, and their number dwindled to virtually nothing.

It was the drouth, scientists explained. Bats feed on mosquitoes, which thrive in stagnant pools. But this year the drouth dried up the ponds and there were no mosquitoes.

Late in the summer extensive rains throughout southeastern New Mexico again filled the ponds and streams with water. Within a day, the bats again appeared.

Where they went during the drouth is still a mystery.

Coin Club Sees Gold Collections

Interesting Session Is Held In Meeting Rooms Last Evening

Another interesting meeting of the New Castle Coin Club took place last evening, in their meeting rooms in the Pennsylvania Power Company building.

Several interesting gold collections were shown, one by former Mayor William H. Gillespie, and the other by Ben Zeisel. James Ball showed a rare old Jewish shekel, while Kenneth Wood exhibited several rare old Kirtland, O., bank notes, countersigned by Joseph Smith, early Mormon leader, who was later murdered. These were dated 1837.

AROUND CITY HALL

Police chronology for 24 hours ending at 3:30 p. m. December 18, six arrests on charges as follows: Suspicion, 2; drunkenness, 4.

There was a Mae West tinge to the councilmanic attempt to fix the budget yesterday in city hall. When the mayor walked out on his colleagues he gave the impression: "Come in and see me some time" and the attitude of his colleagues was to the effect: "He did us wrong." In fact before the mayor departed he was wrathy, likewise the councilmen. The heat was torrid with no side-stepping on the part of anyone. The mayor's complaint was that when he entered office the appropriation for his department was $107,000, and tentative figures for 1935 are approximately $82,250. The other gentlemen did not quote the appropriations for them when they stepped into their councilmanic robes. Councilman Davies, known as "Cautious Dy" charged the mayor had removed men and replaced them with equipment, hinting each man in the department had an auto. Councilman Butler implied the mayor proposed to ask for raises and Councilman Alexander charged the mayor had twice walked out when his department amounts were to be considered. Hoyland didn't say much. As finance manager he said no new equipment could be had unless labor first was taken care of. If there were to be a division of councilmen the steam roller could be operated by a majority vote but they'll all be back in their chairs laughing about the fuss before the sun sets next week.

City of New Castle council tentatively appropriated $250 for the care and operation of the municipal golf course during 1934 and at the end of the year will have spent $5,600, according to figures furnished solons by Controller Wimer during councilmanic budget session yesterday. The receipts were not announced. Councilman Butler inquired as to whether or not the city should stop improvement there next year but colleagues, sans Mayor Mayne, expressed the hope that conditions would prove different next season, inasmuch as receipts during the past season were $1,000 higher than in 1933. Very few golf courses made money or broke even during 1934 due to industrial depression. The city will not abandon municipal operations there the council indicated at the budget meeting.

One of the problems that now confronts council is the Cascade Park deed which the Pennsylvania Power Company gave to the city, according to talk at council's budget meeting Monday. Under the provisions of the deed the city must improve the park to the tune of $7,500 annually. When the budget was tentatively arranged yesterday no provision for appropriating that much money was made. The council takes the attitude that when the CWA and RWD improved the park probably to the extent of $20,000, it was chalked up to the credit of the city and this will cover several years. Municipal operation at the park last season about broke even.

City Controller Wimer will ask council to pass a resolution authorizing the employment of a clerk in department of police if council does not do so soon, he informed the councilmen yesterday when they considered 1935 appropriations. He said that authorization to employ Miss Toepher as an assistant solicitor for a month was regular, but questioned the appointment of Miss Love, made some months ago. He was informed that council had given Solicitor White councilmanic permission to employ Miss Love, whereupon he inquired into the employment of Miss Davis. She was hired by police officials to aid when the auto campaign was under way and since has been compiling records.

Council has apparently come to the conclusion that it would be far better for the city to vote a $10 a month raise to city employes who use their own cars in the transaction of city business than to purchase automobiles for them, according to talk during budget making yesterday. Councilman Davies stated that the city electrician, Rex Hughes, uses his own car to reach trouble zones day and night and carries ladders on his machine. He also said City Motor Mechanic Walker likewise uses his car day and night to reach fire scenes when fire fighting apparatus breaks down. After Davies had finished talking council indicated they agreed with him.

Inasmuch as Burns & McDonnell already has been paid $2,000 on their $8,300 account for a survey of electrical property here, the city will owe them that much less during 1935. The street electric light cost to be paid next year was tentatively set at $50,000. Added to the $56,300 will be $12,200 due for current this year which will be paid out of 1935 receipts, it was said by councilmen during council's budget making attempt yesterday.

During 1934 the city expected the government to give the city aid in making repairs at the sewage disposal plant. Such aid was not received, Councilman Alexander said at Monday's budget meeting. The city employed different men for months and the cost of service and material monopolized all the $11,500 appropriated. Only $500 was added to that sum for 1935. The sum for repairs to the city buildings was left at $750. According to Councilman Alexander the RWD will be asked to furnish labor for this undertaking, hence the small amount of $750.

Mayor Mayne asked colleagues to make provision for $300 with which to pay Wayne Sines for taking care of the police broadcasting system during 1935. He told council at the budget session Monday that at different times it has been necessary to call Sines to the police station to repair the radio system. He declared it has worked good and that inasmuch as a repairman is necessary an appropriation should be made to insure a repairman answering the police call day or night.

Finance Director Albert Hoyland remarked yesterday that "the beer license money saved our lives" when council considered the appropriation for the miscellaneous contingent fund of $6,000 during their budget meeting. The $14,000 which the city received was turned into general revenue and expended for various purposes.

The Nicest Christmas Gifts Are Gifts From Mathers

This seems as good a time as any to state our stand on Christmas. We'd be pretty silly not to admit right off we're in business to sell gifts. But if that were all it wouldn't be much! Just to sell things at a price—that's no fun. But to have finer, brighter, fresher things that make folk say when they open their boxes Christmas morning, "Ah, that's nice—from Mathers"—there you have Christmas in a store like this!

Vast Program Of River Work Is Advocated

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—A vast program for improvement of rivers and harbors throughout the nation was advocated by Secretary of War Dern today as an essential feature of the recovery plan.

In the second section of his annual report dealing with the civil activities of the war department, Dern said the rivers and harbors improvement program could go hand-in-hand with the development of land resources, reforestation, the prevention of erosion, and social advancement.

He added that if it should be found desirable to enlarge the program of public construction, the war department could place at the disposal of the government an eight million dollar program for improvement of rivers and harbors.

HUNT DENTIST TO IDENTIFY WORK ON TEETH

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Re-doubling their efforts in the drive to send Albert Howard Fish to the electric chair, Westchester county officials today launched a nation-wide search, unique in the annals of New York jurisprudence, for the one man who can pave the way toward convicting him of first degree murder.

Thousands of copies of a chart showing dental work on the teeth of little Grace Budd, the blood-mad killer's victim, were prepared today for distribution throughout the country in a final hope of positively identifying the bleached skull found near Wisteria mansion in Greenburg.

The chart will be displayed in post offices and public places and published in dental journals and newspapers in all sections of the United States in the hope some dentist will recognize the work he did on the child's teeth several years ago. The teeth provide the only means of identifying the body, the flesh of which wasted away years ago.

COUNCIL STARTS COMPILING 1935 BUDGET

City's Needs For Year Discussed

Some Paring Down Is Being Attempted By Councilmen In Preparing Figures

SOME CHANGES ARE CONSIDERED

At a meeting in city hall Monday afternoon, New Castle councilmen considered the appropriations budget for the city for 1935. No total amount to be needed was decided at this first meeting, but tentative sums for the various departments were considered. Final action on the budget will be taken within the next couple of weeks.

Tentative appropriations show a decrease in the department of public affairs from $87,374 for 1934 to $82,250 for 1935. However, while salaries for police were lowered from $66,344 to 62,670, because equipment replaced men discharged or resigned, $1,050 was tentatively appropriated for payment of a clerk in the solicitor's department, a clerk in the department of police and a radio repair man. The amount for keep of prisoners, extra police and rewards was kept at $1,000, as was $400 for court costs and views.

For 1934, $8,500 was appropriated for books, stationery, the Gamewell system, traffic signs, police cars and equipment. The RWD will put up signs and the city will buy the material for 1934. No new cars will be purchased as three new cruiser cars were bought in 1934. The sum was cut to $6,000.

Some Changes Made.

Accounts and finance department was cut $1,080. The sum for salaries for the councilman, clerk in his office, controller and treasurer was cut from $7,080 to $6,800, but the compensation of the mercantile assessor was raised from $300 to $450 owing to the assessor getting more assessments. The appropriation for workmen's compensation and insurance was raised from $4,500 to $5,600. Eight thousand dollars was left for payment of the city treasurer's commission, books, stationery and contingent. Of this sum $1,000 was given other departments in 1934. The salary of the assessor was left at $1,800, likewise that for clerks, at $2,400.

In the department of safety the amount set for salaries of the councilmen and firemen for 1934 fell about $400 short and the amount was raised from $64,493 to $64,893. No other changes were made in the fire department, but $700 was cut off the $3,800 contingent for the health department as the department bought a truck chassis in 1934. The departmental cut represented $300.

Salary for the city electrician and his assistant was raised from $2,400 to $2,500 and the city figures to pay not more than $50,000 for electric light which will include the compensation to Burn & McDonell for the survey under way, and $12,200 incurred this year and to be paid in 1935. In 1934, the sum of $76,500 was appropriated. The city will continue to carry $1,720 for telephone service and contingent was left at $750.

Street Department.

Five hundred dollars were added to the contingent of $3,500 for the streets department and the total, inclusive of the engineers bureau, may be left at $49,165.

The department of parks and public safety wages, repairs to buildings, comfort station expenses, city printing and insurance on buildings and contingent were not changed. However, the amount for the care and improvement of parks and forests was raised from $3,000 to $4,200. Playgrounds money was cut from $750 to $500. Only $250 was appropriated for the golf course for 1934 but $5,600 was spent. The sewage disposal plant sum was increased from $11,500 to $12,000. Numerous repairs were made in 1934 and can be completed for $500, it was said. The appropriation for city planning was cut from $500 to $250, and the departmental budget for 1935 will be $34,098 compared to $32,898 if the figures are not tentative.

Three hundred dollars was cut from the G. A. R. memorial of $600 for 1934. Five hundred dollars additional was added to the gasoline and oil fund of $4,500, appropriated in 1934, which will leave an appropriation of $28,400 for miscellaneous purposes for 1935 compared to $28,200 for 1934.

Salaries of the master mechanic and helpers will be increased from $3,300 to $3,600 and repairs will remain at $500. It was stated that the mechanic and assistant used their own cars at all hours of the day and night to help repair fire trucks or police cars and the city would be ahead by allowing them a few dollars each month for car operating expense instead of probably having to buy cars for them.

The foregoing figures are not finally determined upon, Councilman Davies said yesterday; "these figures are tentative." However, they indicate approximately the expenses for 1935.

Kiwanians Will Induct Officers

DISTRICT GOVERNOR TO INSTALL GROUP

District Governor-elect Frank Finley of the Pennsylvania District Kiwanis clubs will come to New Castle on Wednesday evening to serve as installing officer at a joint induction ceremony of the New Castle and Ellwood City Kiwanis clubs at The Castleton. He will come from Wilkinsburg.

Lieutenant Governor-elect Harold B. Smith has also been invited to come from Pittsburgh to participate in the evening program.

Dinner will be served the members of both clubs at 6:30 o'clock, following which the installation will take place. The New Castle club will not meet for its usual luncheon tomorrow because of the night affair.

Attorney Gilbert E. Long will be inducted as president of the local club for 1935 at the service while J. Daniel Reebel will retire from the leadership.

DIES AS RESULT OF AUTO INJURIES

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Anna Bauman Guth, 68, of Saxonburg, near here, died from injuries suffered when an automobile in which she was riding, skidded and overturned. Police reported the automobile was driven by the woman's son, Ernest Bauman, who was uninjured.

New Letters Of Napoleon.

Jews Not The Richest.

7 Wonderful Widows.

He Shot The Poet.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THREE HUNDRED AND EIGHTEEN letters, only one ever heard of before, will be sold in London at auction. Napoleon wrote them to his second wife, Marie Louise, daughter of the Austrian Emperor, mother of the unfortunate "King of Rome."

In spite of bad spelling and worse grammar, every one of these letters will be read eagerly. Napoleon never wrote a dull letter.

The one in the lot known to historians, intercepted and given to Bluecher, told Bluecher of Napoleon's plan to drive the enemy from Paris by marching toward the Marne. That was what Bluecher wanted to know, and then he sent the letter to Marie Louise later, with an apology for reading it. That letter may have changed the destinies of France and Napoleon.

The old advice: "Never write a letter and never destroy one," contains wisdom.

MR. JOSEPH J. FISKE observes that among the "one hundred and eighty-one who had incomes of a million dollars a year during the war, the Jews may be counted on the fingers of one hand. He thinks this interferes with Hitler's theory that members of the Jewish race control the world's money and own most of it.

That theory, of course, is nonsense. There is no Jew among the richest men in the United States, who are, or were until recently, John D. Rockefeller, Andrew W. Mellon, Henry Ford and George F. Baker. In Europe, no Rothschild is any longer "the richest man," although once a Rothschild was the richest.

MRS. GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK, head of the Womans' Press Club in Washington, makes a list of the seven most prominent widow ladies in Washington's political and social life, and here it is, let the chips fall where they may:

"Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth continues to be the most alluring widow in Washington."

The other six are Mrs. Isabella Greenway, prettiest; Mrs. Florence Kahn, wittiest; Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, wealthiest; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. William Howard Taft, historically most prominent, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, politically most intelligent.

Which do you think 999 out of 1,000 women would rather be called? We think they would rather be called "prettiest," like Mrs. Isabella Greenway. The 1,000th would rather be called "kindest." She would be 65, or older.

LAMAR HOLLINGSHEAD admired the young wife of Judson C. Doke, and told her so in poetry. He admired too much, and Mr. Doke dried up the fount of poetry with one bullet.

A jury of eleven men and one woman acquitted Doke on "unwritten law," and the court room cheered. The judge had told the jury:

"The law provides ample redress for a person finding his wife unfaithful."

But men since the cave days have not felt that way about it.

The poet was killed when he refused to write a letter telling Doke's wife he did not love her. Foolish poet. He was a twenty-three-year-old university student.

Doke, thirty-four-year-old milk inspector, will now be tried for alleged embezzlement of $1,800 city funds. Troubles rarely come singly.

AGAIN, PLEASE note that day, December 17, was the thirty-first anniversary of the Wright brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk, first heavier-than-air plane flight on earth.

The airplane makes it possible for a small nation to destroy the cities of the greatest nation, without warning, as a dwarf with a pistol might kill the strongest man. Airplanes make it possible for Europe or Asia to strike suddenly at this country, and wipe out New York, San Francisco, Boston or Washington, D. C.

If the blow must come, it might as well begin with Washington, D. C., where several gentlemen need to be awakened from sweet dreams of security.

CHARLES V. MILLAR, of Toronto, died in 1926, leaving his $500,000 to the Toronto mother "giving birth to the most children in the ten years following his death." The Toronto stipulation bars Mrs. Dionne and her quintuplets.

Mrs. Matthew Kenny leads in the "many babies $500,000 race," having given birth last Wednesday to her eleventh child since 1926, an average of almost two per year.

Your heart goes out to Mrs. Grace Bagnato, Toronto court interpreter, who on Saturday produced a boy, her ninth since 1926. Brave Mrs. Bagnato, who has had 22 children altogether, 13 of them before this race started, and they do not count, a heavy handicap. What would Mussolini give for her, as an example.

It is a fine thing to have 22 children, or 11 children in six years, but it is even more important to have one extra good child at your leisure, as did Olympias, mother of Alexander the Great. She had only one, but that was enough.

MAJ. CASEY, of the du Pont Company, thinks that cities may be visited by "aerial torpedoes controlled by radio" in the next war.

Already airplanes without pilots have flown by radio control. It should not be difficult to direct torpedoes in the same way.

If other nations are to use such weapons against us, and they will, if they find it feasible and necessary, it is to be hoped that somebody in the United States will arrange to make them for Uncle Sam, even though it should be necessary to leave a little of the profit in armament making.

Flying torpedoes, directed by radio, would be convenient to send against invading ships and airplanes.

IT IS possible to be a military hero, and also a traitor, as a bullterrier may be a good wolf-fighter and subsequently kill sheep.

Another British "officer, gentleman and war hero" is on trial as a spy. While "in the service of His Majesty the King," he offered to sell His Majesty's war secrets to a chemical company. One thing about the British, they expose that person, and will jail him, if guilty, "hero or no hero."

IN HER minister to the United States, W. O. Herridge, Canada, appears to be represented by one who thinks, and speaks out. At Ottawa, with Canadian dignitaries listening, he said:

"I would throw over our economic system in a flash if I thought there was a better one available.

"High finance cannot expect us to admit that it has a monopoly of intelligence."

Think of that earth-shaking iconoclasm. Mr. Herridge actually thinks there was something wrong with the old system.

WISE KING GEORGE of England knows which way the straws are blowing. Friends wanted to give him, by subscription, a new yacht costing $150,000.

He thanked them, said he could get along well with his old sailing boat, and advised that the $150,000 "be applied to people out of work." That kind of king stays on his throne.

THE MARQUESS of Donegal tells the London Sunday Dispatch that Chancellor Hitler, flying over East Prussia, was attacked with gunfire from another airplane that fled at high speed after missing.

Perhaps that did not happen, but it might happen.

To Have The Best Cough Remedy, Mix It At Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving! So Easy! No Cooking!

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective cough remedy. It's so simple to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its healing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, lasting relief. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Vigil

Daily, hourly, had Anne welded her Bond of Love. Yet, even as she boasted its strength, she knew how fragile were its links.

Illustrated by
A. G. SKRENDA

McClure Fiction

"When Chuck asked me to free him, I was heart broken. But I wouldn't fight over a man."

Certainly not, Anne thought, when you were already interested in someone else. "Didn't you think he was worth a fight?" she asked aloud.

ANNE felt her heart miss a beat when she saw the traveling bag in Dorothy Halloway's hand. It was true, then. Dorry was going away for a week-end with Anne's husband.

In the Plaza Grill Anne watched the lips of the woman across the table and was stabbed by the thought that Phil had kissed those lips. Had they been soft and yielding? And did Phil for one instant remember his wife as he felt that mouth beneath his own?

Dorothy lifted yellow eyes and smiled her slow smile. "Nice of you to ask me. Do you realize, Anne Calder, that I haven't seen you for ages? How's Phil?"

She dared to ask that! raged Anne silently.

"He's been terribly busy lately." She found the courage to seem indifferent. "I don't see much of him, somehow." She looked straight at Dorothy and said with deliberateness, "He's leaving this afternoon on a business trip."

No ripple of emotion crossed Dorry's face. She returned Anne's gaze serenely, narrowly. Anne was suddenly aware of her two-year-old suit. Was the hat she had thought so smart really becoming? Well, Phil had liked the color.

Dorry asked, "How do you do it, Anne? You don't look a day older than you did in school."

"I hope I have more sense. Eight years of marriage and a four-year-old son should have worked some improvement." Anne's voice was thick. She fumbled in her purse. Her fingers slid across the surface of smooth white letter paper, then jerked as if they had been seared. She grasped at her cigarette case, asked: "Have one?"

MENTALLY she commanded her hands not to tremble while she lit their cigarettes. But the flame from the match wavered and betrayed her. She set her teeth. She knew she must look wan in spite of her rouge and recalled the time Hans Vandervoort had wanted to paint her portrait. "Your face reflects your every emotion," he had declared.

How right he was, she thought, inhaling slowly. Dorry probably was reading her agitation at this very moment. She said, through dry lips, "Chuck dropped in the other night. Phil was staying in town on business and I had him all to myself."

"How was he?"

Dorry sounded so casual. Funny, to be indifferent to the man you had once loved. The man you had married and divorced.

"He's going to marry again, he says."

"Who is she?" Dorry's voice was flat.

"I don't suppose I ought to tell you," laughed Anne, busily choosing among the appetizers. "The truth is Chuck had a few too many highballs and grew very confidential. He's thinking of marrying little Sally Mills. They've been seen around together."

"Sally Mills! That child!"

"A good deal younger than Chuck, certainly. I played contract with her the other day at the club. Have you been playing lately?"

"Just now and then," said Dorry, then added carelessly, "Sally can't be more than eighteen."

"Maybe twenty," guessed Anne. "Why don't you take Chuck back?" She tried to catch Dorry's glance and failed. "You're still in love with him."

Dorry, crunching toast, scoffed, "That's a funny line."

"It's the truth. I think he was in love with you for a long time after the break. Don't you ever see him?"

"Not if I can help it. As long as he sends me my alimony, I'm content."

"Now, that's the sort of remark that makes people say you're cold blooded." Anne sounded indulgent, as if she were talking to an unruly child.

"Chuck's such a prince, Dorry. Haven't you ever regretted the divorce?"

Dorry snuffed out her cigarette. "Now, see here, Anne. I'm not going to let you make a speech on the delights of true marriage. When Chuck asked me to free him, I was heart broken. But I let him go. I wouldn't fight over a man."

Certainly not, Anne thought, when you were already a little interested in someone else and bored with your husband. "Didn't you think he was worth a fight?" she asked aloud.

Dorothy wiped her lips delicately upon her napkin. "That's not the question. I had my self-respect to consider." She turned the full glory of her smile toward Anne.

How lovely she was! Beside her Anne felt old and tired. She watched Jacques remove glass covers from the mushrooms, conscious of a third, an unwelcome guest at the table. Failure, another Banquo at the feast.

"I wouldn't stop to consider self-respect, I guess." She tried to switch the conversation. "I wish I knew where to get such mushrooms."

"Aren't they enormous?" said Dorry, and returned to the argument. "No, Anne, I couldn't haul and pull at a man."

OH, couldn't you? thought Anne, and had to bite her lip to keep from crying it aloud. Dorry had hauled and pulled at Chuck in the first place. He had been engaged elsewhere when she had met him. Now she was hauling at Phil.

"A woman does have to set out deliberately to win a man in the first place," she argued. "Why not fight to keep him after you're married?"

"That's entirely different."

So it was, Anne mused. You simply couldn't expect Dorry to live by ordinary rules. Anne spooned chicken and mushrooms onto her plate and moved them about listlessly.

Dorry said heatedly, "Chuck and I agreed when we married that whoever tired first should say so. And the other would get a divorce. Well, Chuck thought he was in love with that Daly girl. I hope I acted like a good sport."

"I don't call it that. I call it being weak-kneed. The arrangement was silly in the first place. Men and women should marry for a lifetime, without any reservations."

"What would you have done?"

The question caught Anne unprepared. What would she have done? What was she doing? Bandying phrases, empty words, with the woman who threatened her happiness. She said quietly, "I'd have fought."

She watched the mask on Dorry's face slip for one unguarded instant, and watched her smile a secret sort of smile as if she thought, "But you don't know."

For one wild breath of time, Anne was sure she was going to strike Dorry's face. She sprang, trembling, to her feet, and saw the startled expression in Dorry's eyes. "I've—I—" she stammered and caught at self-control. "I must call the house. Jackie's ill, you know, and I want to talk to the nurse. Excuse me?"

She almost ran from the restaurant. Her temper was roaring like an angry beast and she wanted more than anything else at that moment to show Dorry the letter in her purse. The letter she had chanced to find in the family desk that morning, and that her horrified eyes had read in one glance. That letter would prove to this complacent schemer that Phil's wife did know. And that Phil's wife was fighting.

Her fingers shook so that she could hardly get the coin into the box. The stuffy telephone booth seemed to press in on her while she waited for her number. Why put off showing Dorry the letter? She had arranged the luncheon for this one purpose. But something cautioned her to wait. The buzzing of the busy signal seemed to say, Watt . . . watt . . . watt. . . She hung up the receiver and walked slowly back to the table.

"All right?" smiled Dorry.

"Busy." Anne was mistress of herself again. Humorously she told the story of the dead rabbit and Jackie's funeral services for his pet, making Dorry laugh.

DORRY'S face grew serious. The opening came. "Anne, I've been thinking about the things you said. Could you forgive and forget? Is that what you'd do in my place?"

Anne buttered a roll with concentration. "Forgive infidelity?" she asked lightly. "I think I would. I'd forgive Phil any big sin. It's the little ones that wear you down." She grinned at her own fancies as she went on, "Now if Phil ate with his napkin tucked under his chin or didn't keep his neck clean—" That was lying. She couldn't ever forgive Phil for infidelity, and she knew it.

"Of course, your child would make a difference. You'd never break up Jackie's home, would you, without a fight?"

Was Dorry trying to sound her out? "Let me tell you something." Anne tapped a long forefinger on the damask to emphasize her words. "Certainly Jackie is an enormous part of my life, but not so great as Phil. My husband is the greatest interest I have."

"Why, Anne!"

"It's true. There are two types of women, my dear, and I'm the other type. Dearly as I love my child, I love Phil more.

"You see, Dorry, I've spent eight years trying to be a perfect wife. I've dressed for Phil's eyes, talked for his ears alone. I gave up my painting because Phil hated the idea of a career for women."

"I wondered about that. Everyone said you showed such promise."

"If a wife's intelligent," Anne went on, "she sees to it that she and her husband build up something between them that nothing can destroy. A bond a man never quite forgets. Chuck didn't marry this first girl—what was her name? Daly."

"No-o—"

Anne chuckled. "I sound like a lecturer at a Woman's Club. But I've seen so much of this among my friends that I made up my mind it would never happen to me." She was looking straight at Dorry.

Dorothy inspected her salad and said casually, "But there is such a thing as a great love. What would you do if Phil came to you and said he was mad about someone else?" She hesitated—"as Chuck came to me?"

"Laugh to myself and take him seriously to his face. Give him a chance to get over it as I'm giving Jackie a chance to recover from the flu. Or I'd go out and buy a red hat like that one over there. Phil adores red hats."

"Do be serious, Anne."

Anne said truthfully, "I never was more serious in my life. Phil wouldn't mean it, really. Any more than Chuck did. I know that. You should have known it, too."

"What do you mean?" Stark terror looked from Dorry's face.

Anne chuckled to herself. That one caught her off balance, did it?

"I mean," her voice was deep and low, "that every day I'd be with him. He'd see me in every move the other girl made. I tell you, Phil would never find a moment's happiness if he deserted me for any other woman. I've built my life to that one purpose."

"And you think you've succeeded?"

I KNOW I have." Her boast spoken with confidence made Anne wonder how she could sit here and lie so deliberately to Dorry. She continued, "He'd never kiss that woman that he wouldn't recall the times he'd kissed me. He'd never see a little boy that he wouldn't think of Jackie and our plans for him. He'd never lower the lights in any other house, or look into a fire on the hearth that he wouldn't be crucified by the memories of other dusks and his own fireside, with me there."

"How can you be so sure?" Dorry was sitting very still, making no move to taste her melting ice.

Anne laughed aloud. Don't get too serious, she warned herself. "Because I've made every day of our lives together dramatic. I've made special occasions out of small things we've done. We coined code words that only Phil and I understand."

In her mind a voice shouted "Vigil!" so loudly that she wondered if Dorry too could have heard. The code word that Anne loved best of all their words. Phil and she said it on the first star to sweep away their disagreements.

"You know, Dorry, there's a certain glamour about a man's first home. His first wife, no matter how unsatisfactory, is always the fulfillment of a dream."

"As I was Chuck's I suppose," sneered Dorry. Her mouth was hard. Phil would hate that line. . .

"You didn't work at your job, Dorry. You forgot that husbands need romance."

Dorothy powdered her nose, peering into her compact mirror. "Perhaps you're right. But I can't see myself begging for another chance. Do you think Phil appreciates your efforts?"

"Probably not," Anne said. The letter in her purse was proof enough. She raised her coffee cup to her lips and the bitter-sweet taste of the liquid was like the bitter-sweet taste of the statements she had made.

"Are you going to phone again?" asked Dorry.

Anne was terribly tired as she walked to the booth. The beat of her heart kept repeating "Failure—failure. . ." The nurse's voice. Jackie was fine. Mr. Calder had phoned.

"If he calls again," Anne said, feeling her body take on new life, "Tell him to meet me in the Plaza lounge before he goes to his train. If he has time."

She dropped another coin and called his office. Left the same message with his secretary.

Back at the table she told herself that she could not fling this letter in Dorry's face.

In the lobby, she decided she wouldn't go to the check room with Dorry. She stopped short and her mouth seemed curiously rigid when she said, "Nice to have seen you. Don't thank me. I wanted to have you."

"I'll call you when I come back." Dorry turned toward the door, then hesitated. "It's too bad," she said slowly, "to see Chuck taken in by a little gold digger like Sally Mills. She's hardly out of school, really. A word of warning from you, Anne—"

"Warn Chuck yourself," interrupted Anne.

HER legs were numb as she dragged herself into the lounge to wait for Phil. She sank on a couch. If he came she'd tell him he was free.

Closing her eyes, she saw that without Phil she would simply drag herself through life. How meaningless existence would be without him! To wake up morning after morning and find his place beside her empty. To find the first evening star and not say, "Look, Phil. Vigil!"

Now her instinct told her he was here in the lounge even before she looked up and met his troubled gray eyes.

"Here you are!" He slumped down on the couch beside her, slid his arm along the back. In that first glance, Anne saw that his usually ruddy face was white.

"What's the matter?" she asked, for the moment the letter forgotten. "You're so pale, Phil."

But he ignored her question and snapped and unsnapped his cigarette case. "Look, Anne, why don't you and Jackie go away for a little trip? He's been pretty sick and a change would do you both good."

So he wanted to salve his conscience by sending them away!

"I don't think I want to," said Anne. The stupid catch on her purse had stuck. She fumbled with it frantically.

A BELL boy interrupted them while Phil was stammering something. "Mrs. Calder?" asked the boy and handed her a folded note.

Anne read it incredulously. "I was going to call you at your house but saw you still sitting in the lounge. I phoned Chuck. I won't have him marry that Mills girl. I want him for myself. Come to the wedding?" And Dorry's scrawled signature.

"One of the girls I play bridge with," Anne answered Phil's questioning look. Through the roaring in her ears she heard him say, "The nurse said he was dying."

"Who," asked Anne, wondering how Phil would take the news that Dorry was marrying Chuck again. "Who was dying?"

"Jackie." When Anne sprang to her feet, he soothed, "No, no. I called and asked for you and how Jackie was. I thought the nurse said he was dying and I almost went crazy. I tried to get in touch with this client to tell her I couldn't take care of the business in Chicago and I couldn't locate her. My God—all the time I thought our Jackie was dying, alone. When I called the nurse again she said I had misunderstood. That he was fine not dying and I cried. Honestly, I bawled right in front of the whole office."

Anne smiled sympathetically. It was Dorry, of course, that he had been trying to reach. Even though he had canceled this trip to Chicago—how about the next? She had the letter ready now, half thrust it toward him.

"And I got to thinking that we haven't had much fun lately, together. I've six weeks before the directors' meeting. Couldn't we go away somewhere?"

Anne caught her breath. He did love her, then. She hid the letter in her skirt. It might have taken the thought of Jackie's dying to make Phil realize, but he did love her.

"I've something to tell you," said Phil. He twisted his hat around and around between his hands, staring at it. "I've been the biggest fool—I almost—"

Anne interrupted wildly, "So have I. So has everybody sometime. Don't tell me—" She didn't want his confession. That would stand between them all the rest of their lives. The fact that he was willing to tell was enough.

Phil grinned widely at her and asked, "What about that trip? What do you say?"

"I say 'vigil,'" cried Anne.

"Silly," laughed Phil, "There aren't any stars in the Plaza lounge."

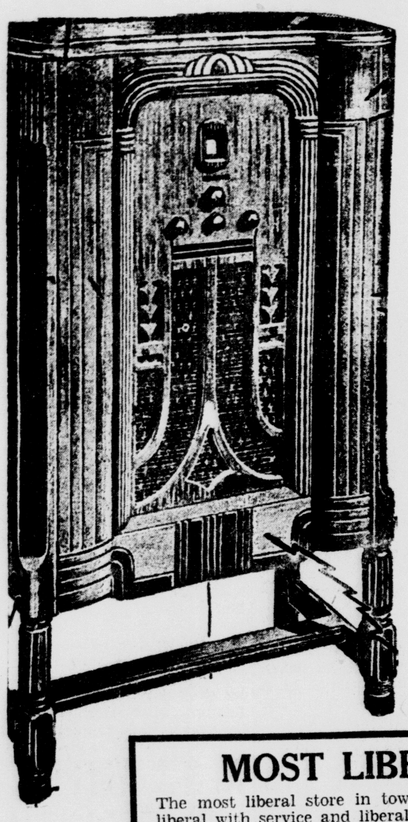

"Oh, yes, there are," declared Anne. And in her dark eyes, there were.

Slot Machines Hold But $13.29 When Scrapped

Sheriff Pritchard Says He Expected To Secure Much Larger Sum

MACHINES SEIZED IN RECENT RAIDS

Sheriff Edward E. Pritchard and Deputy Ben. E. Hartland went down to the county detective's office this morning to smash eight slot machines confiscated in recent raids. Sheriff Pritchard says he noticed when the machines were taken that some of them seemed full of coins, one of them in particular with 25 cent pieces.

The machines were taken into a back room where Deputy Hartland wielded a sledge with such telling effect that the machines were soon reduced to scrap. The total cash taken out was $13.29, which will be donated to the poor fund. On the machine that was supposed to be full of quarters, but one 25 cent piece was found.

What became of the money is a mystery that the sheriff is now trying to unravel. County Detective Sharp Leslie was equally mystified when it was found that only $13.29 was found in the machines. They were supposed to be under lock and key since they were confiscated. County Detective Leslie say that so far as he knows nobody has been in the room. Sheriff Pritchard is of the opinion that some one must have secured entrance to the office and extracted the coins.

Several of the persons from whose places the machines had been taken asked to be allowed to have the money that was in them but this had been refused.

Hoyland Talks On Controversy About Budget

"I'm not siding in with anyone, but we cannot spend more money than we have and we must confine ourselves to what we can pay for," said Albert Hoyland, finance director, today in commenting on the differences of opinion that arose yesterday when council attempted to compile a 1935 budget.

The figures set down were tentative and the session broke up without a date for resumption being announced.

Hoyland said today that "the city is a corporation and should be run like a home."

"There is not one of us who do not need things, but if we don't have the money we cannot pay for it, therefore we do not buy."

The safety director has expressed himself as opposed to buying any sizeable amount of new equipment unless salary cuts inflicted on employes are returned first.

"They went along willingly but if we continue to buy equipment and do not return some of the money taken away, the employes of the city will realize this and not feel so keen about it."

Recovery First, Reform Can Wait

What Country Needs Most Is Good Old Fashioned Co-Operation

(International News Service)

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Dec. 18.—Recovery before reform was expressed today as the first principle of business' offer of co-operation with the government.

"The whole spirit of this meeting is cooperation," said C. B. Ames, named as chairman of the 90 business leaders called here by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Everyone, politicians and business men, all are for recovery. I personally believe recovery should come first. Reform can be considered later."

A new organization for continued liason between business and the government has been born in this meeting. The group probably will be extended to include railroads and bankers and will try to be a real element in the "partnership of government and business" often suggested by President Roosevelt.

Woman Weeps Continually Result Of Injury To Tear Duct In Auto Crash

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 18.—Continual tears are the basis of a suit brought in court here today against Henry H. Wilson, Beaver attorney.

An injury to her tear duct which allegedly causes her to weep constantly caused Mrs. Della Harrick, 2., and her husband, Stephen, former West Virginia assistant football coach, to start the suit.

According to the Harricks' claim, the injury was suffered in an automobile accident when their machine was crowded from the road by a car driven by Wilson.

Hamas Scheduled To Box Schmeling

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Steve Hamas, of Passaic, N. J., and Max Schmeling of Germany, will meet in a 12-round bout in Hamburg, Germany on March 10.

News of this came today through an announcement by Hamas' manager, Charlie Harvey.

Harvey said he had cabled acceptance of the match to Walter Rothenberg, German promoter, after he had become convinced that Madison Square Garden would be unable to meet his terms for the match.

WAYNESBURG WINS

(International News Service)

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 18.—Waynesburg today added its name to the Pennsylvania schools that have vanquished Youngstown Y. college after a 33-16 win here last night.

The Jackets had rolled up a 24-3 lead at half time and coasted to victory.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Charlie Harvey, manager of Steve Hamas, announced at New York today that he signed for Steve to box Max Schmeling at Hamburg March 10. Hamas to guaranteed $25,000, and from now until the bout with Schmeling Hamas cannot box any other opponent.

Waynesburg college beat Youngstown, in basketball 33 to 16, at Waynesburg. Geneva won from St. Marys at Emmitsburg, 29 to 18 and Pitt Panthers clawed a 42 to 22 victory over Butler at Indianapolis last night.

In the strangest payoff in mutuels Sweep Vestal was first across the finish line and second in the betting in the opening event at Charles Town, W. Va., yesterday. The bay filly, a non-winner in its six race career, defeated the field in the six and a half furlong race, but not one win ticket was sold on its chances at the mutuel window. The one payoff was made on the second horse, Tiny Miss. Had one ticket been sold on Sweep Vestal to win, the payoff would have been $1,318.50 to $2, slightly better than 658 to 1.

Arsonites were being sought today by Toronto, Ont. police, the result of a blaze which destroyed the Thorncliffe race track, three stables and 20 valuable race horses. Two weeks ago a fire levelled two unoccupied barns. The caretaker said last night's fire broke out in several places. Most valuable of the horses destroyed was Ladder, owned by Frank Selke and worth $20,000.

Bill Terry And Scribes Make Up

New York Reporters Agree To Kiss And Make Up With Manager Of Giants

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, 18.—It is a pleasure to announce that everything is quite superb now betwen Bill Terry and the "$35-a-week reporters" who were running his business. It all came about the other day as a result of a compromise, whereby Mr. Terry is to continue as manager of the New York Giants and the reporters tacitly consent to permit this; that is, after breaking bread with Mr. Terry, they are now telling their readers that William is just a big, misunderstood boy and doesn't know his own strength, or something.

This halcyon condition was achieved at a luncheon where William stressed charm and an open countenance, answering questions with an air of marked candor and altogether putting on quite a show. I think it is considerable of a reflection on our intelligence that William feels that he has to do this in order to be allowed to earn his living in peace.

Is Very Frank.

As for his frankness, that was no act. Terry is frank beyond the bounds of the average amenities. If you ask him what he knows, he tells you and, if he knows nothing at all, he'll confirm that with equal alacrity. That makes him an ideal baseball manager from the standpoint of the newspaper profession, comparable with Rogers Hornsby and Stanley Harris, who see no reason why they should be secretive and furtive about a business that makes a point of catering to millions.

All in all, I'm coming to believe that the New York writers are just becoming familiar with their subject. After all, they've been too busy abusing him to notice whether he was worth liking or not.

GENEVA COLLEGE QUINTET WINS

(International News Service)

EMMITSBURG, Md., Dec. 18.—Geneva College floor artists rolled on eastward today as they continued their first tour of the season after defeating Mt. St. Mary's basketball squad here last night, 29-18.

Although the squads were tied at 13-all at half-time, the Genevans defense tightened in the second half to hold the home team to only five points.

Wittenberg College Five Fails To Stop Westminster In Opening Game

BENNETT-HUNNEKE LEADING SCORERS

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 18—Westminster College basketball team took the wraps off last night at the Westminster gym for the first time this year before a home crowd and proceeded to give Wittenberg College, of Springfield, O. a neat trimming 44 to 23.

Excellent Passing

Coach John D. Lawther's 1934-35 edition of Titan floor men looked very impressive in their home start. The Westminsters used a fast passing attack and this combined with accurate shooting by Wesley Bennett and "Swede" Hunneke soon put the Ohioans to rout.

The end of the first half found the Titans leading 27 to 8. The Wittenberg team made the mistake of playing the Westminster team man for man. Against the Titan system this was rather difficult. The last half found Coach Lawther changing combinations rapidly, and the Titans only scored 17 points against 15 for the visitors.

Krivosh Looks Good

One of the most promising of the first year men at Westminster is Johnny Krivosh, former Sharon star who was teamed up at the start of the game with Wesley Bennett at forward.

The game served as a warning to the Tri-State teams to look out for the Titans of Westminster this year, as the Lawthermen are going after the championship with a determination.

So good was the Westminster defense that Wittenberg was held to but six field goals, with the Ohioans making 11 fouls. Wilhelm and Hunneke look headed for another great season at the guard jobs. Backus a new man will develop into a good center with more experience. The summary:

This Man Rival Of New Castle Hunter

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 18 — Hunters may come and hunters may go, but Silas Plummer, of near Beaverdale, refuses to submit leadership in the outdoor pastime to anyone.

Plummer is even running ahead of J. P. Rea, New Castle nimrod, in the matter of establishing records. Their contest has nothing to do with the number of deer taken recently, although it might be recorded that Rea bagged an 8-point deer while Plummer's latest achievement was bringing down a 4-point buck.

What is really significant, however, is that Rea will observe his 80th birthday next February. Plummer, known throughout this section as "Daddy," is an 87-year-old civil war veteran.

PITT PANTHERS DEFEAT BUTLER

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 18.—University of Pittsburgh's sage aggregation were headed for home, and Christmas vacations, today following their administering a shellacking to Butler University, 42 to 22, here last night.

The Panthers had control of the situation throughout the game and had a six point advantage, 23 to 17, at half-time.

Hughes and Emerick of the Panthers were tied for high- individual scoring honors at 10 points each.

New Record Low For Casualties Among Hunters

Dispel Report That State Deer Hunters Had Very Lean Season

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 18.—A record low of hunting casualties for recent years may be established in the season just ended, Ernest E. Harwood, executive secretary of the state game commission, said Monday.

Reports to date show 30 hunters met death and 200 were wounded during the current year as against a total of 31 fatalities and 252 non-fatalities in 1933, the previous record low, according to Harwood.

However, the 1934 totals may be changed by deaths among the wounded, Harwood said.

Of the fatalities this year, seven occurred during the big game season as compared with nine during the corresponding period in 1933. Deaths during the small game season in 1934, however, numbered 23 as against 22 last year.

Although final reports of the total kill have not been compiled, Harwood dispelled reports that the hunters went through a lean deer season.

NIGHT BASEBALL IN BIG LEAGUES JUST EXPERIMENT

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The belief that the National League is definitely committed to night baseball is a mistake, according to Ford Frick, the senior circuit's newly elected president.

"Night baseball," Frick declared, "is just an experiment and is not going to become a revolutionary habit. The clubs that urged a trial for night games are the very ones that insisted upon stout restrictions to prevent the idea from getting out of hand.

"I am at this moment drawing an amendment to the league constitution. It prohibits the playing of more than seven league games a season in any one ball park. The penalty for exceeding the limit is not only heavy. $15,000 for every game, but the limit cannot be lifted except by unanimous vote of the eight club owners."

Five Hunters Get Sentences

Four Of Those Sentenced Were Pittsburgh Men, Possessed Illegal Deer

(International News Service)

CLARION, Pa., Dec. 18.— Five hunters, including four Pittsburgh district men were taken to the county jail Monday after being sentenced and fined for alleged violation of the game code.

D. G. Still, Pittsburgh, was sentenced to 105 days on each of two counts of possessing and transporting illegal deer; S. P. Kumpfmiller, Millvale, drew a like penalty on similar charges; Verner Smeltz, Turtle Creek, was fined $25 for alleged failure to keep a camp roster; Lee Galley, Liberty, was sentenced to 105 days for killing a doe and Lawrence Kurtzhul, Paint Mills, near Shippenville, charged with transporting illegal deer, possessing deer and hunting with a borrowed license, was sentenced to a total of 235 days.

The men face serving their respective sentences unless they are able to meet alternative fines imposed.

All church league team members are invited to participate in the evenings entertainment and fun. Following the tourney a social period will be held with a short Christmas message for the boys being given by Dr. G. S .Bennett, pastor of the First Christian church.

MAYOR WAGS TAILS

(International News Service)

BUDAPEST—The Mayor of Pestszenterzsebet decided to wipe off as "bad debts" a sum equivalent, to about $3,500, owed to the Municipality for dog licenses. He explains that he has "no wish to have to order the execution of more than a thousand dogs."

It is prophesied that if the present trend of interference with the activities of individual physicians continues without interruption, the majorty of doctors of the future will become enslaved to a social and industrial system in which quantity, rather than quality of service, will become the index of efficiency.

THE SPORT PATROL

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

THE NEW GIANTS

Bill Terry may not be an easy person to interview and he has been known to be rude to girl reporters but Memphis Bill does know his baseball from the back stop all the way out to the flag pole.

While the other seven clubs bickered and bargained without much luck Terry determined to land a new shortstop, a utility infielder with experience, and a centerfielder. And now Pittsburgh is still hunting a catcher, second baseman, and outfielder; Chicago wants a first baseman, the Phillies want everything including cash; and so on, but Terry has Bartell, Davis, and Koenig and says he's ready.

It was certain that the Giants would get no place in a hurry in 1935 if they kept intact the lineup with which they concluded the past season. Whether or not they have added enough strength to win the pennant next year is a question only the future can answer but the point is that Terry thought a new outfielder, shortstop, and utility infielder were sufficient and he went out and landed them.

Besides obtaining what he wanted Terry seems to have parted with nothing that could have been useful in the coming campaign. He still has Hubbell, Schumacher, Parmalee and Fitzsimmons; his catching staff has remained; Terry and Critz will play first and second; and Moore and Ott will patrol the outfield.

Bowman was sent to the Phillies for Davis but Joe didn't figure very prominently in the Giant makeup last season. And Terry landed Stout to take his place in the one-for-two deal for Koenig.

The quartet that went to the Phils in exchange for Bartell may look like baseball players in Baker Bowl but they couldn't fit into the lineup of a pennant contender. If Watkins had stayed with the Giants he would have had to take a place in line behind Davis, Leiber and Weintraub. Pezzulo is still a year or so away from major league calibre.

That brings us to Ryan and Vergez, the shortstop and third baseman. With these two playing the left side of the Giant infield the team looked like an iron and ore league outfit so they will hardly be missed, especially since Bartell, Koenig and Jackson are available.

Whether Terry wins the pennant or not, he has obtained the players he believed were needed and what is more, he seems to have gotten them dirt cheap. He now has a first class ball club, no more and no less. He has no regular jobs to be filled and he has no excessive utility players.

Compare this condition with that of the other seven clubs. All of them either have vacancies to be filled or excessive playing material that should be disposed of. The Pirates have four left-handed outfielders but need a catcher and second baseman. St. Louis has Delancey and Davis, one of whom is excess baggage that could be converted into an outfielder or pitcher. The Cubs have too many infielders but lack a first baseman.

Many managers keep good teams intact until they deteriorate but Terry has not made this mistake. Instead of keeping a bunch of veterans together until they outlive their usefulness, Memphis Bill has followed Connie Mack's system of trading while there is a little more than scrap value left in the players.

New Castle High At Braddock, Pa.

New Castle High Floor Team Will Open Season Tonight At Braddock, Pa.

Tonight, New Castle High school basketball team will go to Braddock, Pa., for a floor engagement that opens the 1934-35 season for the Bridenbaughmen. The Section Three champions last year have only one man, Captain Brownie Ostrosky back in harness.

The home season opens Thursday night with Sharon High playing here at Washington gym.

In the Eighteenth Century the general death rate of infants was estimated to be from 400 to 500 for every 1,000 births. Today it is 57 per 1,000 during the first year.

Class AA League Now Has 33 Teams

Class AA conference high school football league is going to have 33 members next year instead of the customary 12 that has been in the circuit for the past two years, it was announced by the W. P. I. A. L. football committee today.

The original setup of the class AA conference of the leading teams in the Pittsburgh district, comprised New Castle, Greensburg, Jeannette, Wilkinsburg, Washington, Clairton, Charleroi, Turtle Creek, New Kensington, Monessen and McKeesport.

Seventeen Added.

The new schools to be added to the list today are Scott high of North Braddock, Ambridge, Latrobe, Mt. Lebanon, Homestead high, Aliquippa, Ellwood City, Beaver Falls, Butler, Kittanning, Donora, Swissvale, Duquesne, Uniontown, Monongahela, Connellsville, Brownsville and possibly a few others. All schools with an enrollment of 1,000 and over are classed in the double A division.

In addition, Georges township, California and Redstone are also asking for class AA rating.

The competition is keener than ever with the enlarged list of schools and some mighty interesting schedules will no doubt be lined up. Most of the schools will be required to play at least four and maybe five of the class AA teams to recieve championship rating.

Stock Market Is Dull Today

Market Is Dull And Prices Are Irregularly Lower, Pressure Evident

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The stock market was dull today with prices irregularly lower.

Pressure on utility shares and other groups in the list was evident from the opening gong.

Consolidated Gas was particularly easy in the power and light group losing half a point.

Public Service, American Water Works and North American also were lower.

United States Steel opened half point lower at 37 but managed to recover a fair part of this loss during the first hour, Bethlehem, American Can and other industrial shares were just barely steady.

Railroad shares were mixed with Atchison and Northern Pacific higher, while Southern Railway and Baltimore & Ohio moved down.

Oils showed a slightly better tone in light trading with Consolidated Oil and Socony-Vacuum a fraction above yesterday's final prices.

Loy priced merchandising shares were active with McCrory stores stocks appearing frequently at higher prices. Specialties, aviations, chemicals and liquor shares marked time.

Commodity markets were firm.

Shelby Employees Will Fete Kiddies

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 18.—One of the most certain signs that Santa Claus will soon be here is the annual Christmas party of the employes of the local Shelby plant of the National Tube company, which will be held on Friday at the Shelby club house.

Again through the efforts of the Shelby employes as in the past Santa Claus will make an early visit to the club house to see that his many young friends are enjoying themselves.

The event this year promises to be more successful than ever. Dr. C. Z. Bell is again in charge of the affair. For the past several days Dr. Bell and his co-workers have been busy packing away treats which include candy, cookies, zig-zag, fruit and other things.

A program that cannot help but plea all the kiddies has been arranged. There will be some fine moving pictures, singing and other music. An interesting feature of the course will be a beautifully decorated Christmas tree. Santa Claus will be there in person to supervise the distributing of the treat and talk to the children.

Weekly Health Talks

"The Christmas spirit is definitely abroad again. The peak season for the expression of good will having arrived, it might not be out of place to direct some of this worthy manifestation towards one's self. Without becoming unduly introspective, every one can easily review his habits and in all probability find one or more, the elimination of which would directly aid one's well-being. But one should go further by obtaining a thorough physical examination at the hands of a qualified physician," states Dr. Theodore B. Appel, State Secretary of Health.

"While more and more persons are appreciating the value of an annual inspection and have consequently made it a part of their general routine, by far the majority of persons still exhibit concern in their bodily welfare only when they become consciously ill. Thus they are missing one of the most powerful methods of detouring conditions that might unknowingly be present and which, if left to their own devices, eventually cause serious sickness and not infrequently death itself.

"It seems that man is curious about almost everything else under the sun before he becomes curious about his own physical condition. He is entirely satisfied to take appearances and his feelings to mean that he is, as a matter of fact, as good as he looks and feels. Such an attitude is hazardous. Most assuredly it is not based on scientific facts.

"Certain heart ailments, kidney conditions and other diseases are expert killers because of their diabolical gum-shoe methods. Working in the dark, so to speak, they frequently undermine the constitution of the victim before he is even conscious of their presence. When they do finally come to the surface the benefit from the application of remedial measures is likely to be exceedingly slim.

"Therefore, in persons past forty good health should not be taken for granted. And while no one needs to become a particle alarmed over such a statement, it nevertheless should inspire everyone, now not doing so, to apply a little of the Christmas spirit to one's self by obtaining a thorough physical check-up. And further, make the practice an annual affair.

"Of course, the probability is that the physician will give one a clean bill of health. Again, he may discover minor defects that should be corrected. And in a minimum number he will find some of the really powerful enemies at work—a discovery that may prevent serious consequences.

"In short, to appreciate the value of a periodic physical examination, and annually to obtain its protective power, is one of the most logical ways of playing Santa Claus."

Fat has its advantages; being a fuel reservoir against times of great exertion or starvation, it conserves the heat of the body, and appears to be a factor in resistance to disease, inasmuch as under-nourished people are more prone to infections than those in a good state of nutrition.

During a discussion in the county Commissioner's office this morning the question arose as to who was responsible for eliminating the tax payment qualification as a requirement for voting Some of those present were disposed to lay the blame on a Republican legislature. However when the matter was looked up it was found that it was by a constitutional amendment carried at the election in 1933 by a vote of 670,325 for elimination of the tax qualification and 46,136 against. The amendment was so worded that it is doubtful if all electors were aware that it permitted voting without paying taxes.
